

People Wouldn't Stand It

Police Couldn't Enforce It

Stop Smoking by Law?—Not on Your Life!

A British doctor who told a Canadian audience governments must curb smoking has overlooked three things, according to Victorians—the people don't want it—the police couldn't enforce it—the government can't afford it.

U.K. cancer specialist, told the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Cancer Society yesterday that "governments must see to it that smoking is prohibited in all public places."

But Victoria gave the good physician short shrift. "I hope we're still living in a land of freedom," said Victoria Chief Constable John Blackstock. "However, if such a ban were established by law, enforcement would be a major headache. We'd have bootlegging all over again, of tobacco, this time."

Fred E. Richardson, 1757 Richardson, himself a smoker, thinks the ban on smoking in public would be a good thing. "Most of us really enjoy only about three of the cigarettes we smoke in a day. The rest are just habit, and most lack the will-power to break the habit. We don't need to smoke, and it's bound to cause damage. We're just too lazy to stop."

Mrs. Janette Senior, 930 Richmond, is a non-smoker who frankly thinks the habit is "disgusting."

"What I think would cut down on the use of tobacco," he said, "is the imposition by the government of a tax so high that purchase of tobacco would be economically unfeasible."

Another non-smoker who is opposed to imposition upon individual rights is Mrs. Ruth Lohr, 2679 Chambers. "If people enjoy smoking, then they should be free to do so."

Pearkes Confident But U.S. Cuts Back

Canadian Smokers Get Money's Worth

TORONTO (UPI)—Canadian smokers leave a shorter butt than American smokers.

A survey for the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Limited and the American Cancer Society showed that the average Canadian butt is slightly under one inch, while the American cigarette butt is one and a quarter inches.

Canadians pay 20 cents tax on 20 cigarettes, compared with eight cents in U.S.

Can Canada Keep Saucer a Secret?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of a Congressional committee have questioned whether security measures in Canada are good enough to keep America's first flying saucer as secret as it ought to be.

Censored testimony released by the House space committee showed that some Congressmen were concerned about the matter.

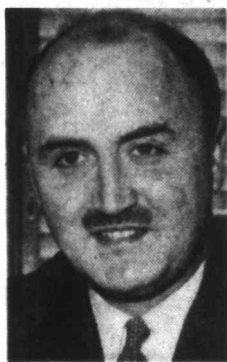

A Toronto firm, Avro Air Craft Ltd., is developing the saucer-like craft for the U.S. Army and Air Force.

American military officials assured the committee that Canada's security control was closely interlaced with that of the U.S. but said it still would be hard to keep the project wholly secret.

Witnesses said initial test flights would be conducted in Canada, possibly this summer. The Pentagon "will have to say something" publicly after the flights begin, said Brig. Gen. F. H. Britton.

Liquor in Cafes

Bonner Advises Leniency

Police should not enforce too strictly a law prohibiting possession of liquor in restaurants, Attorney-General Bonner said Thursday.

"The law is not intended to harass people," he said.

ONE OBLIGATION

"The only obligation on an individual is that he refrain from tramping about town with bottles of beer or liquor hanging out of his pockets."

COMMENTS

Mr. Bonner was commenting on a criticism of the law by Judge R. A. Sargent during a recent Crown appeal against the acquittal of a man accused of having liquor in a cafe.

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes told a Senate committee Thursday that there will be "very shortly" a chain of Bomarc anti-aircraft missile stations across North America.

A few hours later, the United States House of Representatives appropriations committee disclosed it had voted to cut $162,700,000 out of the Bomarc procurement program. The committee said it isn't convinced the Bomarc system will work.

EFFECT UNKNOWN

There was no immediate indication of how the committee's action will affect the Canadian defence program.

This country is scheduled to get the Bomarc-B in 1961 while the U.S. committee dealt with procurement of the shorter-range Bomarc-A.

In reply to a question in the Commons Tuesday, Mr. Pearkes said: "In my opinion the facts do not warrant any uncertainty as to the effectiveness or future use of the Bomarc ground-to-air missile."

Robbers Get Peso Fortune

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A fortune brought here from the United States was stolen Thursday night by holdup men who fled after wounding a U.S. woman.

Cuban pesos valued at $3,000,000 were brought to Mexico for conversion at a profitable rate of exchange. Four U.S. citizens and three Mexicans were said to have been involved.

'Behind-Scenes' Remark Triggers Uproar in Council

Ike Twits 'Four'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower suggested jokingly yesterday that the Big Four foreign ministers, who flew back to Geneva together, shouldn't land until they reached an agreement.

The president coupled his jest with an offer to send a tanker plane to refuel their airplane so they could remain in the air.

PASSED ON

The president's remark was relayed to newsmen by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. He and 19 other foreign dignitaries attended a White House luncheon given by the president.

The dignitaries came here for the funeral of former secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the president, in a more serious vein, thanked the foreign visitors for making the trip. At his suggestion, the luncheon guests arose and toasted the late secretary.

U.S. Eyes McKee Activities

SEATTLE (AP)—An inquiry is being made into the activities of investment broker James Harris McKee, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission officer here said Thursday.

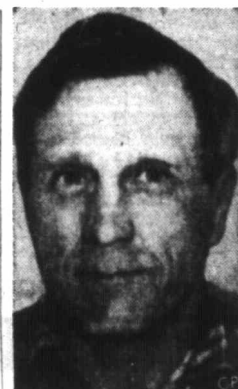

An attorney for the commission, John Fagan, said McKee presently is in Bellingham, Wash. McKee had been under scrutiny by securities authorities in British Columbia and Ontario for his part in raising some $850,000 for a Fraser River placer mining operation which never paid off.

The Victoria Colonist said Wednesday that McKee was currently trying to raise more funds, from the same persons in Ontario and British Columbia who contributed to the Fraser River scheme for a new venture in California.

Fagan would not comment on the report but said that "so far as we know he is not attempting to raise money from investors in the United States."

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A showdown meeting that may decide the leadership of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors has been planned for Sunday.

The sect's self-proclaimed new spiritual leader, 58-year-old John Lebedoff will return to the Doukhobor community of Krestova on that day with the intention of taking over the sect from present spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, now living in Uruguay.

Lebedoff has threatened to name terrorists responsible for Kootenay violence.

A large contingent of RCMP will attend the meeting to prevent violence between the pro-Lebedoff group and those supporting Sorokin.

Monkeys Launch Man

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two monkeys turned the tables on Cape Canaveral scientists Thursday. They launched a man, Gardner Alexander Rank, leapt into the air with a yell of surprise when he looked up from a flower bed into the grinning faces of two furry pranksters, fugitives from the home of a neighbor.

They were recaptured by a posse of neighbors after a hectic chase, and gardener Rank came down to earth.

"Absolutely right," said the acting mayor.

Ald. McEwen said he would withdraw his remark, but stand by his proposal that the property be advertised again.

Ald. McEwen Stirs Storm

By R. O. MARRION

Ald. Elmer McEwen threw city council into an uproar yesterday with a reference to "behind the scenes" property dealings.

He withdrew the phrase later, however, after other aldermen had taken it as meaning underhanded, and explained that he didn't for a minute intend to suggest that there had been anything crooked.

The remark came during consideration of a finance committee recommendation that council accept a $22,500 bid from B.C. Land & Investment Agency on behalf of a client for the former Camosun tennis courts on Kingston, as the site for a large apartment building.

10 PER CENT HIGHER

This figure, City Manager C. C. Wyatt told council, was about 10 per cent higher than a provisional price mentioned in negotiations between the mayor and King Realty on behalf of clients who—according to letters read to council—planned a 100-suite, $1,000,000 apartment building. These interests made no bid when the property was advertised, but asked yesterday that the city consider the advantages of having their proposed building on the site.

Council worried about the proper course of action, but finally agreed to table the question until its next meeting and obtain a report on details of the buildings proposed.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell and Ald. Austin Curtis held that the highest bid should be accepted.

Ald. McEwen questioned whether the property had been properly listed or advertised, and then came out with his remark: "There's certain property for sale . . . certain behind-the-scenes moving on property in the city for months, and I don't appreciate it . . ."

TAKE EXCEPTION

"I take exception to that! What does he mean? That's quite a serious charge!" interrupted Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood.

Ald. McEwen said council had had "all kinds of it this afternoon" and asked Acting Mayor Dowell if he had known earlier of the "arrangements" with King Realty.

"This innuendo is a terrible thing to do," said Ald. D. J. Proudfoot. "I don't think anyone on council would do anything underhanded. When there was going to be money in it for the city wouldn't you discuss it? I would."

"Regardless of any negotiations that might go on, is it not true there isn't a single piece of property sold without coming before this public body with the press present and so forth?" demanded Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

"Absolutely right," said the acting mayor.

Ald. McEwen said he would withdraw his remark, but stand by his proposal that the property be advertised again.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

YEARS ago I read "How to Win Friends and Influence People." It made such an impression on me that I have used it for my guide ever since. I took careful note of Dale Carnegie's instructions, and made a point of doing the opposite of what he said.

"Remember people's names," Carnegie advised. I started forgetting people's names even before I learned what they were.

"Give your wife breakfast in bed," he suggested. I made her give me breakfast in bed.

Well, I'm exaggerating. I didn't try to turn all Mr. Carnegie's maxims inside out. Even I am not as stupid as that—and I can assure you that when they bestow stupidity awards, I will be a contender.

However, I was repelled by what I took to be a certain hollowiness in Mr. Carnegie's advice. It seemed to me that he was advising people to butter up their fellow-men with flattery, so as to make use of them.

Mr. Carnegie explicitly disavowed such intentions, and advised his readers to be sincere at almost any cost. But I felt that he didn't mean it. I thought Mr. Carnegie was as phoney as a plaster pillar.

This impression was heightened by a number of salesmen who insulted my intelligence by using Dale Carnegie tactics in such a transparent way that I could almost see them ticking off Mr. Carnegie's points on their fingers.

Yesterday, however, I came across the same Dale Carnegie book that I had read so long ago. I must have brought it up with the stuff from the old house where I had lived as a boy.

I began thumbing through it, and oddly enough, I found that it made sense.

True enough, I still felt that Mr. Carnegie had got rich by translating the Sermon on the Mount into business language and selling it to people who used the Bible for a door-stopper.

And as I read the book I could hear in my head the sepulchral tones of those salesmen who had tried, in such a heavy-footed way, to follow Mr. Carnegie's advice.

I still felt that perhaps Mr. Carnegie simplified things too much, and was over-ready to look on the bright side.

It still seemed to me that a person should try to interest himself in others and help them because that was a good thing to do, rather than because he hoped to gain by it.

However, I now began to feel that it was better to act from poor motives than not act at all. If there were millions more Carnegie disciples, all praising their fellow-men, pretending to be interested in their neighbor's affairs, bestowing praise instead of blame, the world would be a vastly improved place—even if they did these worthwhile things to gain votes, or sell soap.

Court Upholds Move

City Workers Defied Union in Wage Pact

Strained relationships between Victoria local 885 of the Teamsters' Union and some of its members who took it upon themselves to settle a wage dispute was brought into the open yesterday in a court action in Vancouver.

The Victoria union said workers had settled a dispute with Motorways Central Co. Ltd., a freight hauling firm at 2955 Douglas, on the eve of a strike vote.

The union sought a Supreme Court injunction restraining the firm from "interfering with the union's rights to bargain on behalf of the company's employees."

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan yesterday rejected the request and upheld the right of employees to settle their differences without the assistance of a union.

He said he would make no order that would disturb the "tranquillity of the present situation," and added that if the local's officers feel there has been a breach of the law they should lay a charge.

R. M. Cole, branch manager of the cartage firm, last night said that the firm's 12 employees settled the matter themselves and that the company was satisfied with the result. He confirmed the report that an agreement had been reached on the eve of a strike vote.

A spokesman for the employees declined to comment.

Chart shows flight trajectory of the Project Mercury satellite in which U.S. will fire a man into space—and bring him back down after three times around the earth.

Safety Devices, Human Brain Will Bring Him Back Alive

Success Chance 95 Per Cent For Mercury Astronauts

Canadian reporter Val Sears interviewed members of the U.S. Space Task Force to obtain exclusive first-hand accounts of the American project to send man into space. This is the second article of a three-part series.

By VAL SEARS

LANGLEY FIELD, Va. (Special) — The Astronaut who rides the first American manned satellite through the fringes of space will be able to peer down at earth through two port holes and talk to scientists by radio.

During the flight, the Astronaut will be able to breathe two complete environments—one inside his space suit and another inside the capsule.

Seven men are now undergoing rigid training here in preparation for the attempt to send a manned satellite around the world—and bring the man down alive. The Mercury Project of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration is racing to beat the Soviet Union in this first giant step toward mastery of space flight.

The U.S. spaceman's conversation, incidentally, may well be broadcast on normal radio bands, despite project officer's concern that things might get fouled up.

REBROADCAST
"There's nothing we can do about a network setting up special equipment and monitoring every word for rebroadcast on normal channels," said one administrative officer. "In fact, we're very worried about ham broadcasters—not to speak of the Russians—gabbing away at him in space and jamming our working channel."

"You know," he mused, "if he lets off a string of four-letter words every few minutes that might frighten some of the monitors away."

If all goes well, the satellite will orbit the earth three times, taking 90 minutes for each circuit at a height of between 100 and 125 miles.

SEVERAL AXES

What can go wrong?

First, the Atlas missile carrying the capsule may have to be aborted in mid-flight. If so, the capsule will rocket free, although the strain on the Astronaut going through several axes simultaneously under tremendous gravities will be almost unbearable.

Secondly, the retrorockets could fail to fire, although engineers attached to the Space Administration sponsors of the project say the odds against failure of all four are impossibly high.

If something went wrong with all of them, however, the Astronaut would continue to whirl around in space perhaps as long as 30 days. He would be in an eerie world of silence except for radio contact. His food and oxygen would run low... eventually expiring.

"In time," said one engineer laconically, "his oxygen would just run out."

Finally, a parachute would send the 1,900-pound capsule into the water—or ground if the guidance mechanism was in error—with body-crushing force.

Despite these possibilities, engineers say there is a better than 95 per cent chance of success, largely as a result of the ability of that sophisticated mechanism, the human brain, to take care of low probability error.

Says Deke Slayton: "Oh, I'll come down some time."

"Besides," he said, "it is seldom the first flight of a new vehicle that gives trouble."

"It's the third or fourth, when we're experimenting with different forces, that we sometimes lose a man."

During his four and one-half hour course in space, the Astronaut will be weightless.

This poses problems ranging from feeding to waste disposal.

WATER IN BULB

Food likely will be extruded from toothpaste tubes and water from a plastic bulb.

Just what the effect of sustained weightlessness will have on a man, no one is quite sure. The longest test to date has been about 40 seconds in an aircraft describing a parabolic arc.

Slayton says he doesn't mind the effect.

"It doesn't bother me, I don't get sick or nauseous—it just feels... different."

(Tomorrow: What does it take to be an Astronaut?)

The boy "caused more trouble than 12 older boys put together," policeman Reg Jones testified. "I can only describe him as the holy terror of Porthcawl."

The holy terror was accused of: stealing from cars, taking bicycles and stealing from a store, taking his mother's pay envelope and spending it on cigarettes, setting fire to a phone booth, then calling up the operator to report it with "indecent language," playing looney, stripping other boys of their clothes and money, and damaging crops by throwing stones.

VANCOUVER — Attorney-General Robert Bonner says compulsory breath tests for suspected drinking drivers are not practical now. He said some persons are able to consume more liquor than others without becoming impaired.

BRUSSELS — An attempt to give the Belgian royal family a "new look" will begin immediately after King Baudouin returns from his U.S. visit, with an unprecedented open-car tour through the main streets of Brussels.

VANCOUVER — Edna Rossiter, president of the B.C. Registered Nurses' Association, said there is no shortage of nurses in the province.

VANCOUVER — Mrs. Adriana Taylor, 78, of Vancouver died in hospital from what was believed to have been food poisoning. Her sister, Mrs. Kate Vlain, 82, was still in hospital.

B.C. Leaders Asked To Honor Scientists

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public and business leaders in British Columbia have been asked to create a foundation to honor eight scientists who discovered how to produce an important chemical of life synthetically.

The proposal was made by Walter Koerner, prominent B.C. lumberman and philanthropist.

The institute would be named for Dr. Har Gobind Khorana, 39, who headed the eight-man B.C. research council unit in its six-year project to artificially produce Coenzyme A, a complex natural substance.

Products Nobody Wants

SOMETHING is fundamentally wrong with a state price-support policy which has the effect, if not the intention, of encouraging farmers to produce more food than can be sold or even given away. That is the kind of policy under which the taxpayers of Canada are laboring at present.

Thanks to the former Liberal administration the government is deeply and apparently inextricably involved in a scheme whereby farm products are bought by the state at fixed prices which ignore the laws of supply and demand, to be sold for whatever the government can get for them, or unloaded at fire sale prices when the surplus becomes too hot to handle. Year after year for more than a decade vast warehouses have been crammed with butter which cannot be disposed of on the domestic market because the public will not pay a price that would permit the government to break even, and the government dare not cut the price for fear of upsetting the home market.

Various schemes have been devised to get rid of the recurring surplus without transgressing the international dumping laws, but none has worked out satisfactorily and the taxpayers have had to stand losses running into millions of dollars. It is the same story with surplus pork and cheese production. At a time when many people in Canada could not afford to buy meat very often at any price at all, big shipments of pork were all but given to Communist-controlled countries at prices far below those ruling at home. Once again the taxpayers had to pay the difference between the price paid to the farmers and that obtained abroad.

The sad story of excess butter, cheese and pork has been told and retold over the years. Now to those products as drugs on the market must be added skim milk. The federal minister of agriculture recently announced that the Dominion had offered 30,000,000 pounds of skim milk powder to international relief agencies in January, but so far only 18,800,000 pounds had been accepted. In other words, the government couldn't even get rid of it as a gift.

It is much easier to start a thing like this than to stop it, as the United Kingdom found out in connection with nationalization of industry and "welfare stateism." Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government inherited Canada's farm price support program from its predecessors and appears to be in much the same fix. Yet, undeniably important as agriculture is to the nation, what is the use of subsidizing the production of huge surpluses that nobody wants at cut prices or as a free gift?

'Monty' at Rideau Hall?

A LONDON paper suggests that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery might become this country's next governor-general. It says he is the only Briton on a list of possible successors to the Hon. Vincent Massey, and that he is a "hot favorite" for the job. In whose eyes, one wonders. Possibly Whitehall would like to see him installed in a post where his frankness could no longer embarrass it. For the same reason the newspaper in question, not partial to the field marshal, could be indulging in wishful thinking.

It will of course be for Premier Diefenbaker to choose the next governor-general, although no doubt private high-level interchange of opinion on the matter has gone on between Ottawa and London. If the famous "Monty" is the only Briton among the possibilities this suggests that some other Commonwealth figures are under consideration. Elsewhere for instance Prime Minister Menzies of Australia has been mentioned, and he seems fairly receptive to the idea.

Mr. Diefenbaker is keeping his own counsel but it is not unlikely that he is canvassing the Commonwealth field. An appointment of this nature would be a return to the previous practice of importing governor-generals, departed from when Mr. Massey was named to Rideau Hall. Supposedly it may not be too easy to choose his successor from home ranks, perhaps because of political connections; yet it is scarcely complimentary to Canadian life to imply that it cannot supply a governor-general.

As for Lord Montgomery at Rideau Hall; that certainly would adorn the Canadian scene. It seems hard to envisage the ebullient field marshal frozen into constitutional propriety, however. Lord Montgomery well knows the ps and qs of things but has always found it difficult to be contained by them. If he could immobilize himself at Rideau Hall, as it were, this would rank as his greatest victory. And yet in that case he would not be the "Monty" who enlivens the world by being himself.

Breaking New Ground

PROOF that living creatures can be sent on a 1,500 mile voyage through the atmosphere at speeds ranging to 10,000 miles per hour, and returned from a maximum elevation of 300 miles to be recovered unhurt an hour and half later, is a notable breakthrough even for the advancing art of rocketry. The United States Army's Jupiter rocket which yesterday made the unprecedented flight with two live monkeys separately sealed in capsules in its nose has opened the door to an almost limitless field of conjecture. Within the limits of what was attempted in this test the experiment at Cape Canaveral was a complete success. If monkeys survive the epochal journey without damage to themselves the assumption is that a day man may be able to tell of a like experience.

From a scientific standpoint, the recovery of jetisoned capsules on time and according to pre-arranged plan is not the least interesting feature of the remarkable experiment. Recording instruments retrieved in the same fashion could yield much data that mankind has never had access to before. It is consonant with progress in a scientific age that the earth's atmosphere at very high altitudes is coming now under closer scrutiny by measurement and other scientific tests. Radiation, magnetism, the origin of storms and much else besides may be made to yield up secrets under such probing.

It is natural, however, that the public interest should centre in the amazing voyage of two living creatures into this strange world of beyond, through all the perils of blast-off, acceleration, weightlessness and falling in turn as two prototypes of the first animate adventure into space. The United States, with some other notable firsts to its credit, yesterday added the most advanced one, projection of what may one day be the commonplace of tomorrow—space travel by human kind.

Interpreting the News

Opportunity for Talking

By JOHN HEFFERMAN
Reuters Correspondent

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Big Four foreign ministers may at last get down to secret discussions over Berlin and Germany as they fly back over the Atlantic to Geneva together.

The news that Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, had accepted Christian Herter's offer to accompany him and Selwyn Lloyd and Maurice Couve de Murville, the British and French foreign ministers, on their return to Switzerland had diplomats in Washington buzzing with the possibility.

For the first time in history, the prospect was opened up of a foreign ministers' conference high above any "summit"—20,000 feet or more in the air.

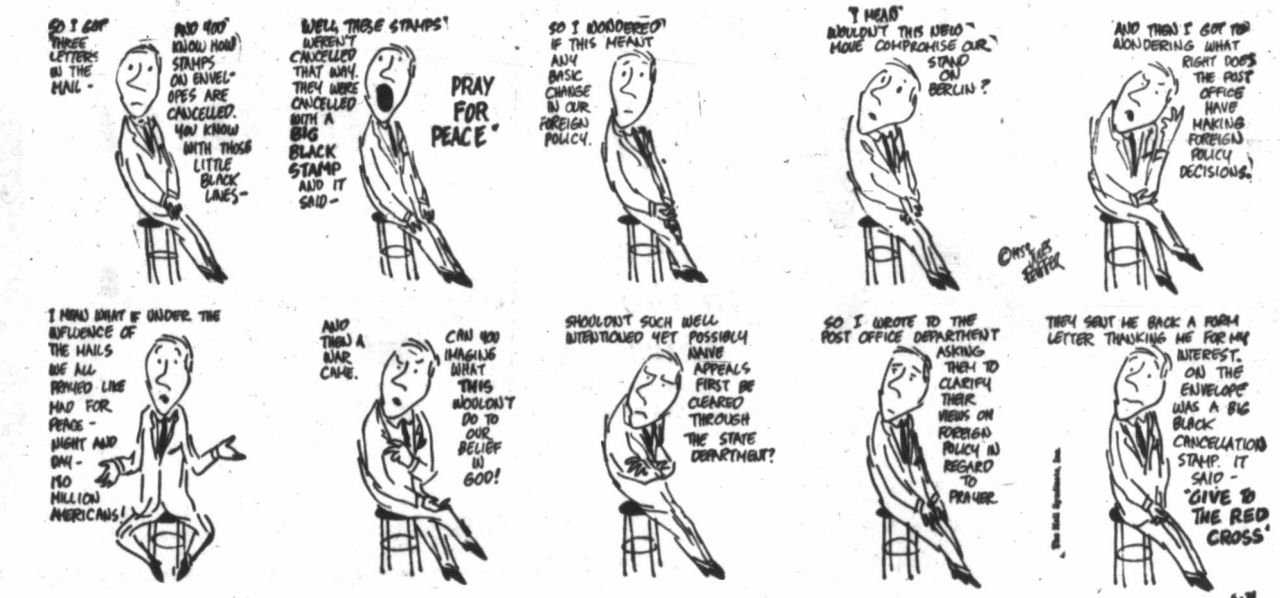

Similarly, the three Western ministers were considered to have had a golden opportunity, in their flight from Geneva to Washington to go over the events of the last 2½ weeks at their roundtable talks with Gromyko.

Herter's specially equipped Superconstellation, observers here noted, is an ideal plane for informal talks. It has the advantage of desk space, too, for writing notes.

The death of Mr. Dulles has provided a dramatic occasion for quiet, informal talks which may be more fruitful than the formal debating sessions that have characterized the Geneva talks so far.

Officials here showed reluctance to utilize the sombre occasions of Dulles' funeral to launch into a "cold war" conference. They thought it was not proper, in the circumstances, to make pronouncements even semi-officially.

Privately, however, diplomats observed that even Dulles would probably have appreciated some of the irony in the present situation. It has taken his death to bring to Washington Gromyko, one of the opponents he faced on many occasions in sometimes angry debate.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A PROPOS the old adage that Marines would believe anything, discussed here last Sunday, a Saanichton reader writes:

"When I was a boy, sixty years ago, the saying was 'Tell that to the Horse Marines,' i.e., to a quite impossible non-existent body. Since then the 'horse' has been dropped, making the expression utterly meaningless."

That version was indeed extant as a derivative reply to a tall story, but Scott phrased the saying without the horse 135 years ago. So did Byron a year earlier, in a footnote to "The Island" stating: "That will do for the marines, but the sailors won't believe it."

Another reader, in Nanaimo, also asks: "Shouldn't you tell it to the Horse Marines?" and goes on: "Sure and there were some too! There are several British regiments which served afloat and were classed as marines. One is the Royal Norfolk."

I daresay, but surely the Norfolk didn't ride horses. I thought they belonged to the immortal P.B.I.

My Nanaimo correspondent adds the interesting information that the French troops who originally garrisoned Canada were marines. He adds an intriguing note by saying further:

"I would like to see a Royal Canadian Marine Corps formed. Of course, general opinion of a marine is a native-breaking jingo, but as a corps elite they are an asset to any service."

I doubt the defence department can absorb any more elite corps; one, the new Guards, is enough. Anyway all our units are elite, don't you think?

A colleague points out that Alec Guinness had nothing to do with building the Lions Gate Bridge. I didn't mean to suggest he had, but my reference was ambiguous. As far as I know the screen actor is no relation of the Guinness brewing company which underwrote the construction of the Vancouver bridge. My colleague adds that probably the actor could now finance such a structure himself, out of his screen earnings!

So it wasn't the Duke of Edinburgh after all who turned on the water sprinkler that drenched two photographers at the Chelsea Flower Show, as a London paper had, indignantly, reported. At least palace officials indicate it must have been some other person.

I should hardly think it would be the Duke, if only because this would be too overt an act even if he felt like doing it. Perhaps he would, for Prince Philip reputedly has an aversion to the press and photographers. In fact of course he should be grateful for the publicity he receives.

To be blunt about the matter, if the royal family weren't kept constantly in the public limelight the monarchy might wither away.

A nice lady telephoned to explain that the dandelion takes its name from the French dent de lion—"lion's tooth"—because of the shape of its leaves. I suppose I could have found this out myself instead of asking the question, but botany is not my strongest interest even if I am on intimate, if quarrelsome, terms with dandelions. I still can't see anything dandy about them, nevertheless, Leo or no Leo.

A Canadian note from the Manchester Guardian:

"We have just heard that the backroom boys of a Canadian agricultural merchant are on the brink of hatching a painless onion, odorless but equal in other respects to the standard model. The president of the company, tingling with expectancy, hopes the 'social onion,' as he puts it, will enrapture the Canadian and American markets next year. He adds: 'We have already got it tamed to the point where you don't cry when you peel it, and the smell is on the way out, too.' This is what Orwell feared all along."

Fundamental Difficulties

Russia's Geneva 'Package Plan'

By W. N. EWER, from London

THERE is perhaps inevitably a kind of pattern for international conferences. And this meeting of foreign ministers in Geneva has not departed from it. So that the second week was, for those of us who have been to many other conferences, a familiar experience.

The two sides as an essential preliminary to negotiation have defined their "first positions." In this case this has taken the form of presenting each other with a "package" plan, covering and uniting, in a single document, their proposals on the subjects which they wish to discuss.

The term "package" has been applied mainly to proposals submitted by the Western powers. But it is also the correct description of the Soviet proposals. Indeed the Soviet proposals seem to be more of a package than the Western proposals.

The West has submitted a peace plan which is an outline of suggested agreement. Mr. Gromyko has submitted a draft peace treaty which covers in a single package all the aspects of those questions relating to Germany which the Soviet government seems to wish to discuss. Not only that. It is not an outline; it is a draft treaty of 48 articles, laying down in complete detail the terms which the Soviet government apparently wishes to dictate.

So in the first stage of this meeting we have two package proposals and the differences between them are not only wide; they raise basic issues. Mr. Gromyko has called the Western plan unrealistic and unacceptable.

Mr. Selwyn Lloyd has described the Western objections to the Soviet draft as "fundamental," and that for two reasons. The first is that it is designed to be concluded with the two German governments separately; the second is that, "by its very nature it would have to be not freely negotiated but imposed." It is this second point which seems to me to go to the root of the whole matter.

The basic assumption in every proposal which the Western powers have put forward for years past about Germany is simply this: that the German people shall have the right to choose for themselves, by a free democratic process, the form of government under which they wish to live, and that a reunited Germany shall have the same right as any other sovereign people to decide and determine its own external relations. It could, of course, voluntarily accept obligations or limitations. But they must not be imposed. And an attempt to do that, as Selwyn Lloyd pointed out, would historically "hold out a most unhappy prospect."

These really are the fundamentals. They are the basic issues between democracy and dictatorship.

The Western powers ask that the German people (West and East) shall in one way or another be free to choose for themselves the kind of regime under which they wish to live. The Soviet Union will not have this. It insists that any settlement shall in one way or another ensure the maintenance and perpetuation of the present communist regime in Eastern Germany.

That is put in many ways. A favorite one is that "the working class in Eastern Germany must be safeguarded. One might have thought that the Soviet leaders and their German fellow communists would have complete confidence that, given the opportunity, the East German workers would vote by an overwhelming majority for the party which has secured them these 'Gains'."

But of course they in fact know better. They know that given the opportunity the East German masses would rid themselves of their present rulers. Therefore the opportunity must not be given them. The communist dictatorship—based in the last analysis on the Soviet armed force—must be preserved at all costs. Therefore a precondition of any settlement must be the denial of democratic rights to the people of East Germany (or East Berlin). Because that would be the end of Herren Ulbricht, Grotewohl and their comrades, to whom the Soviet government has for its own reasons promised unwavering support.

The other issue is essentially the same. Shall a reunited Germany be as free as, say, Britain or Switzerland or India or the United Arab Republic to choose for itself its own alignment—or nonalignment—in international affairs? The Western powers say "yes." The Soviet Union says "no." Again, because it knows what the German choice would be.

This as I see it is really the basic issue here. The Western powers want a reunited and free Germany: free both internally and externally. The Soviet Union may or may not want a reunited Germany. But what it definitely wants is that a reunited Germany shall not have freedom either internally or externally. It wants to preserve the East German communist dictatorship internally and to impose on all Germany a foreign policy dictated by itself.

These two points are the basis of the whole Soviet "package" proposal. And I agree with Selwyn Lloyd that they raise really fundamental difficulties.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

OUR big chance is coming, with the arrival of swarms of tourists from south of the border, to teach Americans how to make tea. According to our big tourist associations gathered in annual conclave, we Canadians are dreadful coffee makers. So don't let's give our American guests this coffee we make so badly. And by the same token, let us seize the opportunity to teach the Americans how to make the tea they make so badly.

Privately, I think the reason they make such awful tea is political. To this day they are taught in public school, while impressionable young children, all about the Boston Tea Party. And they feel, therefore, that there is something unpatriotic and even un-American about drinking tea. So they make it bad on purpose. It has become traditional with them.

The way they do it is to give you a cup, a dry tea bag and a pot of formerly hot water. You then dunk the tea bag in the tepid water.

When you demand that boiling water be poured on the tea out in the kitchen, they are miffed. "It was boiling," they say.

You see, they suffer from a confusion of tenses. They do not distinguish between the words boiled and boiling. If water was boiled, it is boiling. If it boiled half an hour ago, it is boiling now.

In memory of King George the Third, to whom all is forgiven by us and surely should be by now even in Boston, let us undertake this tourist season to bring peace to the teapot.

The Tourist Dollar

(From The Ottawa Journal)

ON two or three occasions during recent months, The Journal has called attention to the mounting number of countries making a bid for the tourist dollar.

Lands which for centuries never seemed to care whether or not a stranger set foot within their gates are now indulging in widespread advertising, inviting all the world to visit them and view their wonders and attractions.

In not a few instances these bids for the tourist trade have been highly successful. We learn from the United Nations Review that tourist travel is expanding both in Europe and Asia. Figures comparing 1957 tourist traffic with that of 1956 show that in the year, Ireland enjoyed a 61 per cent increase in its visitors; Poland 49 per cent; Japan 21 per cent, India, 17 per cent and the U.S.S.R. 14 per cent. Most sensational of all was Yugoslavia which entertained five times as many visitors in 1957 as in the previous year.

Canadians seem to spend more money in foreign countries (including the United States) than visitors spend in Canada and the immediate objective of associations and individuals behind the tourist trade here should be to achieve a tourist-spending balance.

Stop Smoking?—Not Me

Even the children drink wine there and yet there is no drunkenness.

Robert Sinclair, 926 Southgate, who admits he is trying to cut down on smoking at his wife's request, said "I don't think they should go that far. People maybe should try to cut down some themselves though."

Mrs. Phyllis Mair, 622 Barton Road, just stopped smoking but termed the doctor's proposal "simply ridiculous. They'd never get people to go for that. Why, my father lived to be 90 years old and he smoked all his life."

Paddy Mair, 1312 Victoria Avenue, said "I quit for a year once but then I figured it was too late to quit. I think a law against smoking would just create another incentive to break the law. Pretty soon we'd have to buy smokes at the liquor store."

Tom Mathews, 1670 McRae, proprietor of a tobacco and newsstand, said the cancer specialist's plan "is for the birds. I smoke 25 cigarettes a day. People should be allowed to do as they please."

Bill Caldwell, 1791 Feltham Road, replied, "I think it's just a lot of nonsense. After all, we've all been warned. It's up to us, that's all."

Bill Francis, 4008 Shelbourne, is a pipe-smoker who said "I guess I have to worry about tongue and lip cancer. The doctor has a good point, perhaps, but it is completely unworkable. My wife and I both stopped smoking together one time and there was so much snarling I said 'you start again and I'll try to quit alone.' I didn't though."

June Lay, 1719 Oak Bay Avenue, smokes a package of cigarettes a day, termed the proposal "very sound but not very practical. I'm not worried that I'll get lung cancer."

Mary Clark, Prospect Lake, a non-smoker, said "It's really all a matter of personal opinion but I don't think the plan sounds very practical. If you want to die young, why not?"

A man who described himself as a tax accountant but who wouldn't disclose his identity said "whether it would be right or whether it would be wrong the government could not financially afford any reduction in its tobacco tax revenue."

Pensioner Walter Wells, 889 Humboldt, who rolls his own smokes, said: "It's a good thing to quit smoking, but a law would be taking liberties away from people."

Mrs. R. L. Gilmore, 2811 Parkview agreed: "I think it is up to the individual."

Non-smoker Mrs. Cecil Shaner, 1017 Chamberlain, said "Smoking is hard on a person. If it is for their own good it should be cut out completely."

Mrs. J. L. McKennitt emphatically disagreed. "Talk about cancer is only for people who smoke three or four packages a day. For anyone who smokes moderately, such as myself, I don't think there is any danger."

J. P. Hague, 2255 Harlow, agreed with Mrs. McKennitt. "If there was a law passed," he said, "you couldn't control it. I enjoy smoking and as far as the danger of lung cancer is concerned, nobody has proven that cigarettes are a cause, yet."

City Man Deals Second Perfect Cribbage Hand

Bert Caddick, 504 Constance, dealt his second perfect cribbage hand this week — to an opponent.

On the receiving end of the rare "29" hand was Mrs. T. F. Ward, 2610 Beach Drive, who has been playing cribbage with Mr. Caddick at lunch hour for almost a year. They are employed at HMC Dockyard Identification Bureau.

Mrs. Ward said she received three fives and jack of hearts in her hand and "almost screamed" when the five of hearts was turned up on the pack.

But she kept a poker face and let him count his hand first before calling his attention to hers.

Mr. Caddick dealt his other perfect hand while he was in the navy.

Soldier Must Pay Seaman $14,480

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seaman James Campbell of Vancouver was awarded judgment by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Supreme Court for $14,480 against Donald Anthony Jodoin of Cornwall, Ont. for injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

Campbell suffered a skull fracture and a broken leg and arm July 20, 1958, when struck by a car owned and driven by the defendant, then a soldier at the Jericho army barracks here. The justice found Jodoin was 80 per cent to blame.

$1,500,000 Burnaby School

B.C. Trades Centre Going Up

By ALEC MERRIMAN

First step in the provincial government's plan to step up vocational training will be construction of a $1,500,000 skilled trades training school at Burnaby.

This school on 40 acres of land on the corner of Willingdon Avenue and Grandview Highway will be centre of vocational training in B.C., and students from all parts of the province will train there.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson is now on a tour of Britain and continental Europe to study vocational training methods there to garner ideas to be included in British Columbia's proposed expanded training scheme.

When the first buildings are opened at the Burnaby Vocational Training School, it is hoped by next October some 300 day school students and some 1,500 night school students will be enrolled.

They are now attending classes in chicken and cow barns at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

Costs of the school will be shared on a 50-50 basis by provincial and federal governments.

Courses offered include aeronautics, boatbuilding, bricklaying, carpentry, electrical, electronics, lathing, millwork and cabinet making, plastering.

U.S. Brings Two Monkeys Back Alive After Blasting Them Out into Space

Important Step Puts Man Nearer Target

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States Thursday fired two monkeys 300 miles into space and brought them back alive and well. The spectacular recovery was an important step toward putting a man in space.

The two female monkeys, named Able and Baker, are the first animals retrieved alive from a U.S. space flight.

Navy frogmen helped hoist the nose cone and the animals from the Atlantic at 4:08 a.m. EST. Only one hour and 33 minutes earlier they had streaked from Cape Canaveral in a Jupiter missile.

10,000 MILES AN HOUR
The intermediate-range rocket hurled the payload into space at 10,000-miles-an-hour speed and dumped it in the ocean some 1,500 miles away in just 15 minutes. The impact area was about 40 miles north of Antigua.

The fleet tug USS Kiowa, a navy recovery ship, discovered the nose cone and plucked it from the sea. Some four hours later a medical officer aboard the ship sent the news:

NO INJURIES
"Able, Baker perfect. No injuries or other difficulties."

Difficulty in opening passenger compartments of the nose cone and a communications mixup delayed announcement that the monkeys were alive. It was reported three hours earlier that the nose

NASA co-operated with the army and navy in sponsoring this space shoot. The space administration used it to gather data for its man-in-space program. Electronic instruments recorded back information on how the monkeys reacted during the 15-minute flight. NASA primarily is interested in how Able and Baker reacted to radiation and the nine-minute weightless period to which they were subjected.

First, First, Second Mortimore's Score

G. E. Mortimore, whose column All Aboard appears regularly in The Daily Colonist, has won an additional honor for his series of 53 articles on the Canadian Indian, entitled The Strangers. It was announced yesterday that his series came second in the social, political and cultural division of the annual national Bowater Awards for Journalism contest.

Mr. Mortimore's Indian series which were published in the Colonist had previously won first prize in the National Newspaper Awards competitions and first prize in the Powell River Company contest feature writing division, and has won wide acclaim all over Canada.

First prize in the Bowater contest in the social, political and cultural field went to Jacques Delisle and Fernand Levesque, joint authors of a presentation on metropolitan government which appeared in the Montreal La Presse. In the economic and business division, Thomas Kent, former editor of Winnipeg Free Press, won first prize for an eleven-part series on the Gordon Report.

Certificate of Merit

Share-the-Flowers Acclaimed in U.S.

The Daily Colonist's "Share-the-Flowers" is one of 46 award winners selected from the 650 best newspaper promotions in North America.

The Colonist, which won a certificate of merit in the public service division of the Editor and Publisher newspaper promotion judging, was the only Canadian newspaper to win an award. Nearly 200 newspapers in the United States and Canada submitted entries in the competition, ranging from single advertisements to eight-foot crates containing a year's promotion effort.

The Colonist's Share-the-Flowers was started in 1954 and is a happy scheme to bring spring and summer cheer to shut-ins in hospitals and nursing homes.

The Colonist publicizes the need for surplus flowers for the shut-ins, generous readers phone in and offer to donate them or help in pickups, the Colonist arranges pickups, the volunteer drivers and delivery of the flowers to various city hospitals.

Thousands of Victorians have had their stay in hospital made happier because of the Share-the-Flowers plan.

Healing Sun Forgotten

NEW YORK (UPI)—Medical doctors are jacked-up for losing interest in the oldest and one of the most beneficial treatments known to man, namely, the ultra-violet radiations of the sun.

The jacker-up, Dr. Edwin Matlin, an authority on what those rays do for the human body, said medical treatment seemed to be like automobiles: "The purchaser is more interested in the new than the tried and true."

"The rush for antibiotic therapy, for cortisone and ACTH resembled a miniature gold rush," he continued. "Tried, true and proven effective methods of treating certain conditions went by the board."

He said 35 ailments of the skin are helped by ultra-violet, and for many of them it is the best possible treatment. In addition, it helps wounds to heal and benefits under-developed adolescents.

To be sure, sunlight itself is helpful, Matlin said, but where is there pure sunlight — and where are the people who could be helped by it who are also able to take it?

"High in the mountains or at the seashore there is some effective radiation," he said, but in cities, even on relatively clear days, dust and smoke filter out the ultra-violet. Anyway "working conditions force most people to work during sunlight hours."

Young-Looking Over-21s Must Prove It to Drink

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—The state liquor control board Monday will adopt regulations eliminating liquor permits and establishing identification cards for persons over 21 but who look younger. Law abolishing use of liquor permits becomes effective June 11.

Tougher Problem Than Arrow Jet Faces Government

OTTAWA — The government now has before it a defence problem even more difficult than the decision to cancel the Arrow jet interceptor program.

The problem, the future role of the 12-squadron RCAF air division in Europe. Once this is decided, the government will have to choose new equipment for the force. If this equipment is an aircraft, it would likely be built in Canada.

Even if a new aircraft were ordered today, it would be 1962 before the air division was completely re-equipped, officials said.

A new division of the northern affairs department represents the launching of a pioneer concept in northern development.

Deputy Minister of Northern Affairs Gordon Robertson told the Commons it has been named the industrial division "for want of a better name."

In a drive to wind up seasonal business, the Commons will start next week to sit longer hours.

The CBC Thursday was given a five-day delay before the Commons broadcasting committee decides whether to demand a closely-guarded corporation secret. The amount sponsors pay for CBC programs.

The federal government will not yield to demands for an independent inquiry into unemployment insurance before changing its insurance legislation, informants said Thursday.

The transport department will launch a record-breaking Arctic supply mission June 25. More than 80,000 tons of supplies will be moved by a fleet of ships to far northern ports, an increase of some 3,000 tons over last year's record movement.

Senator Ralph Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) Wednesday proposed a Senate investigation into methods to promote Canada's tourist business.

Civil Service Commissioner Paul Pelletier agreed with a Tory member of Parliament that a person applying for a federal job shouldn't be asked whether he has ever been charged with a criminal offence.

With only the CCF dissenting, the Commons Thursday gave second reading—approval in principle—to the government's bill to establish a national energy board.

Government and opposition spokesmen welcomed the lifting of import controls by the United Kingdom on a variety of goods from dollar area countries like Canada.

New Ferry Time Cut in Half If Phil 'Drives'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Gagliardi's driving ability got into the act Thursday at the keel-laying ceremony for a ferry being built for the Social Credit government's projected Vancouver Island—mainland service.

Chairman Clarence Wallace, president of Burrard Drydock Company, where the 4,000-ton, 330-foot craft is being built, inadvertently announced that the ferry would make the crossing from Sidney to Tsawwassen, near Point Roberts, in one hour.

"Perhaps if I were driving, it would be that fast but actually it will be a two-hour service," said Mr. Gagliardi.

Mrs. Newton Steacy, wife of B.C.'s agriculture minister, pressed the button which signalled the operator of a crane to lower the first keel section on the ways.

Royal Press Reception LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will meet about 500 British and Commonwealth journalists at a reception here Oct. 26.

Cancer of Skin Blamed On Saskatchewan Climate

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. R. D. Brasfield, a New York surgeon, said skin cancer is common in Saskatchewan because of the climate. He told a cancer symposium that extreme sun, wind and cold are responsible for the high rate of skin cancer.

More Gains Than Losses At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices sagged in moderate trading. There were more gains than losses, but four of the six stock indexes were down. Foods, one of the few stock classifications to show a trend, were higher. Ogilvie was up 1 at 45, Steinberg's advanced 1/2 at 30 and Loeb gained 1/2 at 13 1/2.

Base metals were firm while papers, with Price off 1/4 at 42, were lower. Utilities were active, with Bell up 1/4 at 43 and Broad off 1/4 at 5 1/2, a new low. Ford A closed at 17 1/2, up 1/4.

Pipelines Easier
TORONTO (CP) — The stock market faded slightly at the close but still retained a gain on the session amid the light trading.

Among industrials, papers and banks had the best gains while pipelines were easier. Of the five most active four gained while Trans Mountain Pipe Line lost 1/4 at 13 1/2.

Calgary Power added 1/4 at 93 1/2 but most other gains were less than one point. Interprovincial Pipe Line dipped 1/4 at 31 1/2 and International Petroleum was off 1/4 at 35.

Uranium after a slow start closed strong. Western oils moved in small fractions with the list for the most part quiet. Hudson's Bay lost 1/4 at 16 1/2.

Electronics Strong
NEW YORK (UPI) — Industrial stocks advanced to a new record high.

Their rise came without benefit of aid from the rails and utilities which lagged. Prices slipped off a bit from the highs, but many leaders finished with gains ranging to 2 points.

Electronics issues ruled strong. The extremes were a rise of 11 points in International Business Machines and a fall of nearly 8 in International Salt.

Autos turned irregular but General Motors ruled firm. Steels gained small amounts. Chemicals provided the real fuel for the rise in the industrials.

London Stock Prices
LONDON (CP) — The stock market was generally firm with interest concentrated mainly on industrials.

Engineering shares were again in demand. Ford was strong in the motors. Gold shares, although comparatively quiet, were firm.

Coppers were generally firm but oil shares were erratic. London stock closing:

WINNIPEG (CP) — Export interest was slow on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, and prices were irregular at the close.

Best activity was in flax, most of which concerned closing out of the May contract. Outside interest appeared. Overnight export wheat loadings included: United Kingdom 940,000 bushels, West Germany 530,000 and Soviet Russia 400,000.

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market was steady to weak with corn, oats and soybeans under fairly general selling pressure.

U.S., Canada Priced Out of Market

Dollar Goods No Threat So U.K. Lowers Barriers

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The British board of trade has removed restrictions from another batch of consumer goods from the dollar area, and has increased quotas on others.

Articles ranging from airplane engines to eggs are freed, and the quota on North American automobiles is increased.

The British government is believed to have taken the step because it does not consider North American goods can be sold at competitive prices, and that there will be no wide-scale increase in dollar imports.

Last year Britain did not take up the whole of its automobile quota of 650 units.

In other words, Canada and selfes out of world markets.

Keener competition for business among the leading supermarket and grocery firms is apparently bringing cheaper prices to the consumer.

Domestic Stores, one of Canada's largest grocery chain operations, reports that its profit on each dollar sale in 1958 dropped to 1.80 cents, whereas in 1957 it made 2.1 cents.

Higher wages, greater promotional expenses and costs of entry into new territories are given as some reasons for the lower ratio of sales to profits.

Domestic, like other Canadian grocery stores, did bigger business than ever, however, in 1958. The Dominion Stores dollar sales were up 14 per cent.

BANK RATE DROPS
The Bank of Canada's discount rate dropped for the first time in 10 weeks yesterday, falling .15 per cent from the 4 1/2 per cent which it has held for the past two weeks.

B.C. Power at 33 1/2 and Canadian Collieries at 37 1/2 were strong among industrials, while Western Plywood closed firm at 16 1/2 after trading at 16.

Overnight export wheat loadings included: United Kingdom 940,000 bushels, West Germany 530,000 and Soviet Russia 400,000.

Vancouver Bar to Study Judge's Insurance Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson's suggestion that there be an insurance scheme to protect people from litigation costs will be studied by a committee of the Vancouver Bar Association.

Association president John Farris said the study would take some time to complete and would be involved.

Mr. Farris said: "The question of costs has already caused considerable concern to all thoughtful lawyers and to the Bar Association."

MR. JUSTICE J. O. WILSON
... follow doctors

'Avert Socialized Law With Insurance Plan'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A system of insurance against legal costs to ward-off socialized law has been recommended here by a justice of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, speaking Wednesday night to the Vancouver Bar Association, said lawyers should consider following the lead of doctors who set up Blue Cross, MSA and other medical plans to prevent socialized medicine.

ALREADY IN U.K.
"Socialized law might be a heresy to most of us but this radical departure has already been made in England," he said.

Mr. Justice Wilson said he has always wondered "why a large section of public opinion is inimical to lawyers."

"It is a conception which might have some basis in fact that law is not for the little man," he said.

He said no person should be denied justice because of lack of means.

MANY HESITATE
"But a person like myself could be ruined by a lawsuit," he said. "Many persons hesitate to go to court because if they lose the litigation they will have to pay all the costs. I am particularly concerned with the John Doe litigant who sees a court action more risky than a horse race and far more dangerous."

Attorney General Robert Bonner, who attended the meeting, afterwards said: "I agree with much Mr. Justice Wilson said, and see no reason why the public could not be adequately insured."

South Africa Treason Trial

Prosecutor Loses Anti-Quash Appeal

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters) — The prosecution was refused leave Thursday to appeal against the quashing of the indictment against 61 persons accused in South Africa's mass treason trial.

The 61 were charged with having joined in a conspiracy with the aim of overthrowing the government of South Africa and replacing it with one of a Communist nature.

They were among a total of more than 250 persons arrested on treason charges in 1956.

A mass indictment against the 91 was dropped last October and second indictments were drawn up against a group of 30 and the group of 61.

The first group stood trial from last Jan. 19 to March 2, with the entire proceedings taken up with a defence application to have the indictment quashed.

The application was refused and the defence lodged an appeal, which will be heard in June.

The second group of 61 went on trial April 20 and the indictment was quashed on the same day by the special court of three judges.

They still must appear in court and either be found guilty or freed under a decision by the prosecution not to go ahead with the case.

'Just Hedging' Council Told

With cries of "bulldozing" and "hedging," city council went back into battle yesterday over service station hours in Victoria.

Subject of frequent and sometimes bitter fighting before a period of uneasy peace began last year, the question was reopened by a petition from 42 station operators who asked for removal of restrictions.

Present requirement is that stations close at 6 p.m. or obtain permits and stay open a full 24 hours a day.

"DISCRIMINATORY"
The 42 operators described this regulation as "discriminatory and unnecessarily restrictive of private enterprise," and Lloyd McKenzie, appearing for them, told council "the real issue here is the right of man to work. The present bylaw compels the holders of 24-hour permits to stay open around the clock. Instead of allowing a right to work it compels a man to work whether he wants to or not."

Both the sides labelled "bulldozing" and "hedging" in council won points: the aldermen ordered a bylaw removing the restrictions prepared, but also agreed on having a public hearing.

Ald. M. H. Mooney at first proposed tabling the matter to give other operators a chance to express their thoughts.

NO INSULT
"This is just hedging . . ." said Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, adding when Ald. Mooney objected, that he intended no insult.

Council had been over all the ground before, Ald. Edgewood maintained, and should make its decision at once.

"What affair is it of council's to tell a man who wants to give service to the public and run his business successfully that he must stay open 24 hours?"

"Trying to push this through now is just trying to bulldoze it," claimed Ald. Hugh Ramsay. He opposed having a bylaw prepared at once because, he said, the city had gone to Psychologist:

Criminal Rating Unsound

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of Canada's leading criminal psychologists says it is not clinically sound to judge a criminal by the gravity of his offence.

Dr. Bruno Cormier (CCT), director of the forensic research team at McGill University and psychiatrist at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in Quebec, made the statement Thursday in an address to the Canadian Congress of Corrections here.

Dr. Cormier criticized the "classifications technique" used to decide the fate of men charged with crimes.

JUDICIAL CONCEPTS
"Early classifications in criminology have been based on judicial concepts," he said. "These are generally repressive and pertain to social and individual security."

"All such classifications have one thing in common: they are fundamentally based on the kind and quality of offences and their consequences."

"Such categories are necessary and useful but their value is neither psychological nor psychiatric. It is not permissible to judge the severity of an illness by the symptoms, so it is not clinically sound to judge a criminal by the gravity of his offences."

Dr. Cormier said such a statement may not be acceptable to a judge, "whose occupation is not primarily related to treatments."

'Best Legs in Labor' From Randy's View

LONDON (UPI) — Randolph Churchill, the ebullient son of Sir Winston, was given a red tie Thursday by Mrs. Gaitskell, wife of the Labor party leader, at a birthday party celebrating his 48th birthday.

Churchill has been covering Gaitskell's speeches for a London paper.

He wrote: "One of the advantages of a seat at the press table at public meetings is that one gets a good view of ladies' legs. I think Mrs. Gaitskell has the best legs in the party."

RANDOLPH CHURCHILL

Begin to Doubt Themselves

Even Criminals Get Fed Up

Some Lead Normal Life When Not Safecracking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Habitual criminals reach a point — even without treatment — where they want to give up crime, a pair of Montreal researchers reported Thursday.

At what point this happens depends on when a criminal begins, psychiatrist Bruno M. Cormier and social worker Miriam Kennedy, of McGill University, told a Canadian Congress of Corrections workshop.

The earlier they start, the later they tend to want to give up a life of crime. The true criminal, they said, is the child who starts before adolescence to steal or damage property.

This child is a criminal in his ego — and anti-social. He is likely to become a delinquent teen-ager and then a specialist in some field of crime.

"They go into business, you see, because society won't put up with just general delinquency from adults," Miss Kennedy said in an interview.

"Those who begin in their teens may become safecrackers, perhaps, just like childhood delinquents, but the difference is, when they're not safecracking they may lead a perfectly normal family life."

Contrary to popular belief, the late criminal who committed his first crime in his late 20s or 30s was the least criminal kind of lawbreaker.

These people should probably get treatment instead of a prison term. But all these types, even without treatment, reach a point where they begin to wonder whether it pays to be a criminal, Dr. Cormier said.

"After repeated crimes, when they find they are not getting what they want in life, they begin to doubt themselves as successful criminals and to become depressed," Dr. Cormier said.

EXPERT: Forget it. Chevron Supreme gives maximum efficiency when your engine's cold, while it's warming up and under peak driving load.

To prove to yourself that Chevron Supreme does increase mileage, make the "Supreme" mileage test. Pick up a copy of Standard's "Gasoline Mileage Record" from any Standard Station or Chevron Dealer when you fill your tank with Chevron Supreme.

Too Many in Prison

VANCOUVER (CP)—West-ern countries should revise their whole system of criminal justice to find ways of sending fewer people to prison, Professor Manuel Lopez-Rey, head of United Nations' section on social defence, made the proposal to the Canadian Congress of Corrections.

Too many people are in prison, he said, and he got the impression that the administration of criminal justice is "a bit like a lottery."

Some way had to be found to get rid of short term imprisonment. Probation might not be the whole answer, but if short sentences could be eliminated, prison populations would drop to about 40 per cent of what they are now.

Street-Cleaning Machine Sweeps Up Woman of 70

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 70-year-old woman was swept into the brush of a street-cleaning machine yesterday as she crossed a Brooklyn Street in mid-block.

Concetta Miranda apparently did not see the street cleaner as it moved along the curb. A crane had to be brought to the scene to release her from the cleaner's brushes. She was reported in fair condition.

CBC Tightens Up

OTTAWA (UPI)—Acting president Ernest L. Bushnell said yesterday the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has taken action to ensure no more morally objectionable programs will be presented.

Bushnell told the Commons broadcasting committee that two recently criticized programs were carried because

"one or two links" in the corporation's chain of command had broken down. The two programs singled out were "La Plus Belle des Ceans," shown on the French TV network May 2, and the May 11 radio broadcast of "Man To Man."

Bushnell said the persons responsible for the "Man To Man" program have been "reprimanded most seriously" and warned that sterner action will be taken if the program should get objectionable again. The May 11 broadcast dealt lightly with various aspects of sex.

"We're not infallible," said Bushnell frankly, "we don't pretend to be."

City's Public Market Wins Temporary Reprieve

Victoria's public market will stay in operation for some time yet.

City council yesterday agreed to let the stallholders continue to operate on a week-to-week basis until demolition of the building is about to begin. And the stallholders were given sparks of hope that demolition might still be far off.

Council asked for a committee report on an offer from a real estate firm on behalf of a client to rent the old fire-hall in the building for five years. The client was ready to take the whole building if necessary, the company said.

Ald. Austin Curtis doused that spark somewhat. The city would have to spend a lot of money making the building conform to its own bylaws before it could rent it, he said, and if it didn't, "the fire marshal would be down on us like a ton of bricks." But Ald. M. H. Mooney, who put up a vigorous fight against demolition, offered the stallholders other hope: the city hadn't the money this year to demolish the building, black-top a parking lot and install meters, he contended.

"Some of the tenants have been there 40 years. It's not fair just to have given them notice," he maintained.

The building, he said, could be used for indoor parking, for convention gatherings, for a bus depot, and he could go on and on.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, on the other hand, said he understood the building had been "recommended as unsafe and a fire hazard." Making a fire hazard into any of the things Ald. Mooney had suggested, he said, would just make it that much worse.

He wouldn't think it would be a convention hall for Barkerville, let alone Victoria, he said.

"I would say this city hall is just as bad a fire hazard and we continue operating in it," argued Ald. Mooney.

'Litters' Being Bothered

Let the Ducks Alone!

Plight of the baby ducks in the model yacht pool on Dallas disturbed city council yesterday.

"We have duck trouble at the yacht pool. Three female ducks have, ah, littered," reported Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

"Foaled?" suggested Ald. M. H. Mooney. "Had calves?" "Youngsters apparently are throwing rocks and sticks at the baby ducks," Ald. Edgelow continued, "and it's very disturbing to residents. The little ducks can't get out."

"We have had trouble there every year," Ald. Mooney said. "A walk has been put up out of the pool, but they insist on living there. Once we had city employees remove them, but it cost a great deal of money by the time they were captured and moved."

Council agreed with Ald.

Edgelow's suggestion that the SPCA be asked to move them to Beacon Hill Park.

But later, city officials said mother ducks and babies moved from the pool to the park on previous occasions had just walked back to the pool.

Mayor Percy Scurrah, in Ottawa with a Victoria delegation to seek more shipyard work, will meet Prime Minister John Diefenbaker this morning.

Lt.-Col. and Mrs. W. S. Dingley, who have been in charge of the home for several years, have resigned, effective May 31.

Pedestrian Injured By City Car

A pedestrian, suffering a broken leg and broken arm, was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital by police ambulance after she was struck by a car at Cook and Oxford at 5:20 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Florence Thompson, 69, of 415 Cook Street, was treated for shock, lacerations and abrasions as well as the fractures and later was reported by a hospital spokesman to be in "very good" condition.

Police said the car was driven by Per Sietrang Johansen, 344 Cook Street.

Between September, April

Students Will Spend $700,000 in Victoria

'Tidal Wave' Hits in Fall

Victoria College students will spend $700,000, maybe more, in Victoria between September of this year and April, 1960, Dr. W. H. Gaddes told members of the Rotary Club yesterday.

He was one of two Victoria College professors to speak to Rotarians about the future of Victoria College. The other was Dr. Beattie McLean, who said, "We must be determined not to grow into a university where the individual is forgotten . . . we must watch carefully that while we grow we do not sacrifice this tradition that has grown with this little college."

SAVE $3,000

Dr. Gaddes said that a four-year university in Victoria can save a Victoria family as much as $3,000 on each youngster's university education.

"Not only is a four-year university needed in Victoria now, but it will be a direct monetary saving," he said and pointed out that a student living in Victoria could go to the college for about $900 a year, but it would cost about $1,500 for that student to go to UBC.

Dr. Gaddes said more than 1,000 students are expected to enroll at Victoria College in September, 1,500 before 1963 and more than 2,000 by 1970.

BUMPER YEAR

This September is "the bumper year when the tidal wave of war babies will hit the colleges and universities," he said.

Dr. Gaddes said Victoria College is now constitutionally permitted to offer the B.A., B.Sc., B.Ed. degrees. In September it will offer a full third year in several arts and education courses "and it is very desirable that we have the chance to continue these students on into the fourth year," he said.

Dr. McLean made a plea for a chair of philosophy at Victoria College. "It appears to me to be one of the keystones of any liberal arts course," he said.

NURSING DEGREE

Dr. McLean said that "although we are at present a liberal arts and science university, we may have to meet the need for a nursing degree soon."

He also said Victoria College would be ideal for a school of marine biology and added, "I have always felt Victoria lends itself to faculties of fine arts and journalism."

The nature of Vancouver Island and the climate is the kind where fine arts could flourish, he said.

FIRST CONCERN

But Dr. McLean warned that a university couldn't be established overnight. First concern, he said, is to get the right calibre of professors . . . "first-class, not stop-gap."

Most pressing and desperate need at Victoria College is a library building and a science building, Dr. McLean said.

Widow's House Gets Facelift by Jaycees

An old house belonging to a recently-widowed Victoria woman will be given a new face tomorrow by a Jaycee-sponsored group intent on setting an example to the rest of the city.

The house, at 2120 Oregon Street, received the first step in the annual Jaycee "paint-up, clean-up" yesterday afternoon when a fire truck from the Victoria fire department hosed it down, preparatory to painting.

Children's Milk Before Chlordane

'Only Rich Can Afford To Poison Their Earwigs'

Chlordane is fine as an earwig killer for the rich gardener, says earwig fighter Douglas T. Hawkes, 2713 Cavendish.

"But a guy that can't put an extra quart of milk in his youngsters' tummies won't buy chlordane," he pointed out.

That was Mr. Hawkes' answer to federal government entomologist Harry Andison, who advises poison baits for earwig control, but says it's a battle gardeners will never win.

What we need is more tin cans, Mr. Hawkes said last night.

"It is so simple to 'fill several tin cans with paper and put them on top of low posts," he said. "We all know how to kill earwigs, so let's get on with the job, but let's all battle together."

He envisages "something like a porchlight campaign or an earwig week when everybody puts out tin-can earwig traps."

"Surely that would keep the earwig population down. You kill polio by concentrated effort. I figure these little fellows are around and it is no good trying to beat them off by oneself . . . let's get together," he urged.

But Yachts Get Limelight

Gull Steals Show

By IAN STREET

A seagull stole the show for a few minutes last night from 39 trim yachts gathered in the Inner Harbor for the annual Swiftsure ocean racing classic which starts from Brodie Ledge at 9:30 a.m.

Thousands of spectators turned out to enjoy racing eve pomp and pageantry which this year included a sunset ceremony carried out by the Royal Canadian Navy on the lawn in front of the legislative buildings.

ROOF TOP BATTLE

Many in the crowd turned to crane their necks as the lone seagull fought off determined attempts of a couple of smaller birds to force it from the perch on the highest pinnacle of the Empress Hotel. For a few minutes it was the show.

Police were called in to regulate the press of spectators who crowded onto the floats for a closer look at the gleaming craft dressed overall in flags and bunting, and worth up to a couple of hundred thousand dollars each.

IN HOLIDAY MOOD

But it was a good-humored crowd in a holiday mood. When a visiting yachtsman spotted a friend in the crowd, he called to the policeman on the gangway: "Say of finer, this is a good friend of mine. Sailed in the Honolulu race in 1908."

A crew-cut youth pushed through the crowd and passed the grinning officer who said, "mind how you go, dad," and the crowd hooted with laughter.

In ceremonies starting at 7 p.m. a master-of-ceremonies

Humphrey Golby introduced each yacht entered in the race to the accompaniment of raucous horns and whistles from other boats.

There were brief speeches of welcome by acting mayor Arthur Dowell and RVCY commodore Walter Walsh, and a few words in reply from Pacific International Yachting Association commodore Dan Olsen, of the Bellingham Yacht Club.

After an hour or so the crowds on the floats began to thin out as hundreds took up positions in front of the legislative buildings for the moving sunset ceremony. Units of the navy's Pacific Command put on a display of precision drill.

Meanwhile late-arriving crewmen were tossing duffel bags of gear and suitcases aboard the yachts, while others prepared to spend the night ashore at the Empress where they had taken rooms to ensure a peaceful night.

Members of competing crews exchanged banter like "throw us a line, we'll need one" and "more power to you." No doubt they recalled last year's Swiftsure, when light winds brought home the first boat in 50 hours, compared with the 1957 time of 26 hours.

Because, even in boats like this, with every electronic navigational device money can buy, they must depend on the winds and the tides in tomorrow's big race.

In the words of the man on the public address system: "Tomorrow at 9:30 this Swiftsure fleet of 39 boats with sails billowing, crews with eyes fixed on the far horizon, will face they know not what."

Pond Races Set

Models Stage Own Swiftsure

Swiftsure contestants won't be the only yachts racing this weekend. Friday evening members of the Victoria Model Boat Club will gather at the model boat basin on Dallas Road for their second "meet" of the season.

Members hope to increase their numbers in a city as sailing-conscious as Victoria. It is not necessary to have built a boat to join; kit-assembled models or purchased craft of any type are acceptable.

More information may be obtained from Mr. Macdonald at Room 109, 1216 Broad.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: My husband was a liar and a cheat. When I couldn't stand it any longer I divorced him.

He comes over once in a blue moon, takes the children to the amusement parks, stuffs them full of hot-dogs and caramel-corn and buys them a lot of junk. Then he dumps them on the porch and forgets about them for another five months.

I'm the one who must administer the discipline, take care of them when they're sick, and worry about them when they aren't home on time. I can't afford gifts and treats. It's a struggle to keep them properly clothed and fed.

When I come home from work dead-tired, and they rave about how wonderful their daddy is, I could scream. I can't tell them he's a rat—that he broke my heart and wrecked my life. I don't know how much longer I'll be able to keep the real story to myself. Tell me, Ann, is it worth the struggle? Sometimes I think I'm cracking up. Help me.—R.T.F.

Worth the Struggle

Dear R.T.F.: Of course it's worth the struggle. And don't tell the children the score—even though at times you may be sorely tempted.

Don't you know that love can't be bought with a few roller-coaster rides and a sack of candy? It's the day-in, day-out attention that counts. As your children grow older, they'll be less bedazzled by their father's superficial attempts to curry their favor.

Don't downgrade your ex-husband or try to compete with him. When the kids are old enough to understand, they will—and they'll admire you the more for your silence.

Dear Ann: We bridge players are distressed, disturbed, disheartened and dismayed to find that you lump bridge with "boy-friends, bottles, barbiturates and back-fence gossip." Do you really feel that bridge is as unrewarding as the other four "vices" mentioned, or was it just for the sake of alliteration? Bridge is a game that requires brains and skill. We feel you've done us bridge players an injustice. —AUNTIE APP

Dear Auntie: Anything in excess is bad, and this is the point I tried to make. Bridge certainly is not in a class with "boy friends, bottles, barbiturates and back-fence gossip." I apologize for the grand slam against this grand game. (Fifty-two lashes with a wet noodle for me!)

Burned to a Crisp

Dear Ann: The letter from the mother who complained because her sons "forgot her" when they got married really burned me to a crisp.

I married the son of such a mother and my life has been pure hell. We've had to live next door to "Mama" since the day we married, and every night for the past 12 years, "Sonny" has to visit with "Mama" after dinner. He stays about three hours. What on earth they find to talk about every night beats me.

Six of us must live in four small rooms, cramped to death, because if we moved it would "kill Mama." What gets me is, she left her folks in the old country and never saw them again, but her son must be under her nose for the rest of her life.

My own Mother, God rest her soul, used to say, "I don't care if my sons don't come to see me often. I just want them to get along with their wives." I'm 42 and I feel like 80. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I feel better already.—HAD IT

Confidential to Disillusioned: Of course there are some respectable men left in this world, but they aren't living in women's apartments, mooching room and board in return for "affection." Fine guys aren't for sale. Wake up.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read Ann Landers' new booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

TEEN PROBLEM. A teen lovely asks: What can be done about my figure? My hips measure 34" but my bosom is 37". I look top-heavy and feel self-conscious about it.

The answer: Many teens are troubled by the problem. It comes about because the bosom develops faster than the rest of the figure. There is no way to arrest development and you would not wish to. The bosomline will seem anything but out of proportion as the slim areas of the figure catch up to it. And that they will!

You must never make the mistake of trying to conceal the problem by slouching or wearing tight bras. Slouching only creates more problems—round shoulders and awkward posture. Tight bras are injurious to health and delicate breast tissues. So be sure to stand tall and select bras that in no way bind.

For a slimming effect, wear clothes with deep armholes and plenty of ease across the chest. Vertical detailing helps the cause, too. A small detail like a pointed collar can be slenderizing. If you follow all these suggestions, you will be amazed at the improvement in appearances.

CLUES TO GOOD CARRIAGE

For a lovelier figure, walk with the grace that nature intended! To check or improve on your ability, send for "Clues To Good Carriage," my leaflet giving complete instructions on shoes, stockings and walking techniques that enhance both carriage and leg-line. Write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and five cents in coin.

For $1 You Can Rent Painting Worth $100

For the sum of $1 (repeat one Canadian dollar) anyone in Victoria may rent an original Canadian painting valued at $100 for one month, from the Art Gallery's picture loan section.

The gallery, which never, hardly ever, goes in for bargains, is advertising one this summer.

On Monday, June 1 the Gallery offers a painting for three months for two months rental value.

If Boy Friend Tosses Them -- Watch Out

LONDON (AP)—If the boy friend throws his trousers on the floor at night, he's not the man for you, girls.

It means, says the British wholesale clothing manufacturers' federation, that the man is lazy, flouts convention in a desire to look big, and will never make a success in his job.

Does the boy friend wear a light-colored suit in summer? If he does, stick to him. This one is boss potential.

The federation, which claims it clothes four out of every five men in Britain, has drawn up a chart to help girls pick their husbands.

Just how a girl is to know the way a potential husband disposes of his trousers was not explained.

There is just one catch—you have to be a member of the Art Gallery to enjoy rental privileges. To obtain a single membership the price is $7.50 a year—family membership is $10.

Picture loans are made the first Monday of each month (except July and August) at 8 p.m. in the evening.

As said before a $100 painting rents for $1 a month. A painting worth $150 rents for $1.50 and a painting worth $200 rents for $2 a month.

At the end of the second year of picture loans, the Gallery finds the project to be a great success for not only can members enjoy original paintings in their homes, but it is also of benefit to contemporary Canadian artists in putting their works before the public. The picture loan section has just been completely restocked. There are over 100 new paintings up for loan.

Dior Shows Sold Out

Moscow Style-Mad?

PARIS (Reuters)—The Christian Dior fashion shows scheduled in Moscow from June 12 to 16 are sold out, a spokesman for the Dior house announced yesterday.

HISTORIC TEMPLES

Finely-carved Buddhist rock temples in Hyderabad, India, were hewn by primitive tools about the 4th century.

He said that 12,000 tickets already have been sold and there is a waiting list of 10,000 more Russians who would like to see the collection.

The showings will include costumes ranging from morning wear to the most elaborate ball gowns but no matter how tempting Russian women may find the dresses, they won't be able to buy the models.

Russia forbids the sale of any French fashion imports, and prospective clients will have to come to Paris if they wish to buy the dresses.

Rival But Friendly Buccaneers

This is a case of the crew of Buccaneer III meeting the crew of Buccaneer V both of West Vancouver. Swiftsure friends are Miss Chris Meyer who will crew today on the rival Buccaneer V (left) and Mrs. William Ellis and Mrs. Charles Gould who will wait out the two-day race in the Empress

Hotel while their husbands sail the Buccaneer III. Buccaneer III was the first Canadian boat home in last year's yachting classic, and it's in her prow the ladies stand. The yacht was tied up in the Inner Harbor yesterday amid a forest of masts and pennants.—(Photo by Bud Kinsman.)

Stars Would Be Frumps If Left to Themselves

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — After 20 years of dressing Hollywood's top feminine stars so attractively that their outfits were copied and job-lotted throughout the world, famed fashion designer Charles Le Maire, upon resigning his post at 20th Century-Fox this week, expressed a lowly opinion of the average film queen's taste.

"Only one in a dozen of these glamorous ladies who wind up looking so sleek and resplendent on the screen is blessed with the slightest notion of how to put herself out properly," declared the disillusioned style arbiter—winner of three academy Oscars—who is "getting away from it all" to launch his own designing business in Beverly Hills.

"While that ratio goes for women in general," he added, "somehow you expect more of a screen star because she has the opportunity to get around in an atmosphere where a knack for beautiful gowns and tasteful tailoring is a career necessity."

Most actresses who came into his department to be appraised and fitted for important movie roles were never creative enough on their own to tie a simple bow a little bit different, he pointed out.

"If the wardrobe people didn't attend to every last detail," he went on, "some of your vaunted clothes horses would look worse than the girls next door. When they did offer an idea, which was rare, it usually was on the ridiculous side."

Slovenly posture is rampant among actresses, too, Le Maire said in recalling several drastic occasions where he refused to do wardrobe for a slumping, slouching box-office draw until she had taken a corrective course.

"It is amazing," he moaned, "that in a business where good posture is the first requisite in wearing clothes smartly we find so many professional women who don't understand a thing about it."

Engagement Announced

The engagement is announced of Miss Rosemary Joan Rushbrook, daughter of Mrs. E. Rushbrook, Scotland, to Mr. R. J. Rushbrook, Edinburgh, Scotland, to Mr. Peter Howell Wilson, son of Mrs. W. E. M. Allender, of Dorchester, Ontario, and Mr. W. A. C. Wilson, Westbank, B.C. The wedding will take place on June 6 at 3 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church, with Dr. F. E. H. James officiating. her vows to marry Italo Stradiotto.

She is now 39, pretty and elegant in worldly dress. He is a serious, sturdy man of 47.

What's Cooking!

By Louise Moore

Some little pigs went to market, but so many stayed at home Canada now has a surplus of around 70,000,000 pounds of pork on its hands.

While foreign markets are being surveyed for possible outlets, we, as taxpayers, would benefit by helping use up this huge surplus, and it would be quite simple to do if every family in Canada would serve at least one pork meal per week for the year.

Pork should be cooked to the well-done stage. This means a slow temperature, about 325, until no pink color remains and the pork is delightfully tender. This slow cooking enhances its distinctive flavor.

Pork steaks need longer cooking than beef, hence braising is an ideal method. This can be done on top of the stove or in a 325F. oven. First, brown the steaks or chops, sprinkle with seasoned flour and then give them an extra browning. Cover and slowly cook in very little moisture—water, tomato or vegetable juice. About 1/4-inch of it in the bottom of the pan is enough. Chopped or sliced onion, celery and favorite seasonings such as thyme, oregano, a pinch of sage, garlic or what you will.

Of course, pork meats include sausage, and what more savory dish for breakfast.

QUEBEC PARISH
Longueuil on the south shore of the St. Lawrence opposite Montreal was first settled in 1637.

lunch or supper than good Canadian bacon sizzling in the frying pan—a regular cox-all to breakfast. But make other uses of it, too. To wrap around hamburgers and lamb patties, top a meat loaf, crisp bits tossed into the salad bowl or casserole.

PORK CHOP HAWAIIAN

Choose 6 medium thick loin pork chops and season with salt and pepper. Dust with flour and brown well on both sides in frying pan. Up on each chop place a ring of pineapple with a pitted prune in the centre. Between chops, place carrots, using 6 or enough for serving. Carrots may be left whole or cut into quarters. Add 1/2 cup water, cover closely and cook very slowly for about 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Remove to hot plate and make gravy from brown bits in pan, adding a little water and thickening if you wish. Pour over the chops and garnish with parsley.

Parents of Six Admit Killing Five Others After Births

ROTTERDAM (UPI) — A couple known to their neighbors as "friendly, nice people" has confessed they killed five babies born to them because they already had six children.

G. C. Schaeffer, a plumber and treasurer of a local kindergarten told a court he smothered four newborn infants. He said his wife drowned the fifth in a pail of water.

"I always tried to kill the babies as painlessly as possible," he said.

The Rotterdam public prosecutor demanded 10 years imprisonment for Schaeffer and his wife, Lina.

The Schaeffers' six living children, ranging in age from 7 to 13, were placed in a home when their parents were arrested seven months ago.

Neighbors said Schaeffer, 36, was friendly to children. The living Schaeffer children were reared "excellently and lovingly," according to neighbors.

SIX ENOUGH

But Schaeffer said, "the six we had already were enough."

Officials charged that the five newborn infants were killed over a period of seven years, from 1950 to 1956.

The Schaeffers were formally accused when a physician discovered that an infant which Schaeffer said was stillborn actually had been murdered. The doctor called the police.

According to police, Mrs. Schaeffer managed to conceal the five pregnancies from friends and neighbors. As each child was born it was killed.

CONFUSED ANSWER

Mrs. Schaeffer, sobbing throughout the court proceedings, gave a confused answer when asked whether she had ever considered birth control methods.

"Yes . . . no," she said. "I was afraid of the doctor."

Psychiatrists testified that both the Schaeffers knew what they were doing.

The court scheduled June 11 for its verdict.

Bar in City Hall? 'Misunderstood' Says Alderman

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alderman Frank Baker doesn't want a cocktail bar at city hall, after all. In fact, he's emphatically against it.

"It was misunderstood," the alderman said of reports Wednesday that he had brought up the cocktail bar question at a council meeting.

"A cocktail bar would be in bad taste. It would be too extravagant. The idea is too ridiculous to even consider."

Instead, Ald. Baker said, a reception lounge would be the thing "so Vancouver can entertain guests with food and tea."

Round-the-Clock Guard On Red Envoy's Wife

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard kept a round-the-clock guard yesterday on a Russian envoy's wife who asked for political asylum in Britain, and Home Secretary R. A. Butler made a flying trip to London because of the case.

Ultimately, Butler will be the man who will decide on the request of 35-year-old Mrs. Nina Dmitriev to be allowed to remain in England with her five-year-old daughter, Lena.

The woman's husband, Capt. Aleksandr Dmitriev, 38, assistant naval attaché at the Soviet embassy here, was hustled home to Moscow Wednesday aboard a Russian jet liner.

Cabinet Ready For Meetings All Over B.C.

The tour will start with a meeting at Salmon Arm June 11. On July 21, cabinet will meet at Kitimat, on July 23 at Prince George, on Aug. 6 at Vancouver, on Sept. 22 at Penticton and Oct. 8 at New Westminster.

The Music's the Thing

EDMONTON (CP)—A young professor at the University of Alberta is out to put some jump into William Shakespeare's plays.

Dr. John P. Cutts, 31, of the University's English department, says the playwright's tunes have been too long without music. No manuscripts have been handed down and players sing the songs these days to contemporary melodies.

"This is silly," scowled Dr. Cutts. "It's like the actors wearing wrist watches."

For the last few years Dr. Cutts has been trying to uncover the long-forgotten music. He has travelled widely to ferret out music manuscripts from such institutions as the universities of Cambridge, Edinburgh, Dublin, Paris, London and New York. Music uncovered to date has been microfilmed and fills a library of 40 boxes of film strips.

Some of the music discoveries are incorporated into books the professor has written. He has published 40 articles while Music for Shakespeare's Company is being printed in Paris.

Dr. Cutts likes to sing the songs he has revived but has yet to give a concert here. Last year, however, he sang over the radio, and the CBC has obtained a tape recording of some of his "numbers."

India Pale Ale is here!

This is the Ale that people have been asking Labatt's for ever since we commenced brewing in British Columbia.

This is the Ale that so many of our friends from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes (and service men who visited these provinces) remember as the ale that really tastes like an ale.

This is the Ale whose unique strength and flavour have brought it world wide recognition as a truly distinctive product of Canada's brewing industry.

This is the Ale that has won more international awards for quality than any other Canadian malt beverage.

This is the Ale that is a part of the history of the Empire itself. In the 18th century the Imperial Army requested the master brewers of England to compete in brewing a special type of ale to be shipped to India in wooden casks without deterioration of quality. The brew selected became known throughout the world as INDIA PALE ALE—the direct ancestor of Labatt's famous IPA—full bodied—full strength—full flavoured—the Man's Ale in every sense of the word! Only Labatt's make it.

33 Ships Waiting To Enter Canal

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — About 33 ships rode at anchor in Lake Erie Thursday waiting to enter the Welland Canal. More were expected during the night.

Canal authorities said there still are 105 overseas vessels scattered about the upper lakes and due to return soon.

They were concerned that the ships will join the Lake Erie pileup unless it clears quickly. Some of the vessels lined up in the lake have been there 24 hours.

Planner Dashes Arboretum Hope

Society Movement Called 'Misplaced Enthusiasm'

Plans to establish a national arboretum in Greater Victoria got liberally doused with cold water by two speakers at a Community Planning Association meeting last night.

In Brief

ASUNCION, Paraguay—The body of the baby granddaughter of Bolivian ambassador Luis Arduz Daza was found yesterday in a cistern within the embassy grounds. Tot had been missing since last Sunday.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — A navy plane trying to land aboard the USS Essex raked the side of the carrier, killing two men and injuring 21 others.

SINGAPORE — Singapore's anti-Communist parties failed in a bid to form a united front against the powerful People's Action Party for Saturday's election.

VANCOUVER — The luxurious, 94-foot deep-sea yacht Hildur was launched at Dollarton for veteran yachtsman John David Eaton, president of T. Eaton Co.

MADRID — Spanish government has initiated another series of arrests of young socialist leaders in the most recent of the regime's crackdowns on illegal political parties.

J. E. Boshier, vice-chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board termed the movement of the Arboretum Society a display of "misplaced enthusiasm."

TOO COSTLY
His remark closely followed a statement by W. H. Warren, city parks administrator, that maintaining an arboretum would be too costly for local authorities and that Victoria is too far removed from a university or large centre of population to win support for a national arboretum.

He pointed out that a small arboretum at Saanichton was abandoned for lack of public interest and said that in his 29 years of association with Victoria parks he had never been approached by a high school or college group which wished to study such trees as are available in them.

NEEDS UNIVERSITY
"Because of the cost factor I believe an arboretum must be associated with a university," he said.

A University of Washington arboretum costs $75,000 a year for upkeep alone and absorbed $1,000,000 capital expenditure before the first plantings were made, he stated.

HUGE PLANT RANGE
The Arboretum Society, a Greater Victoria group, seeks to interest the federal government in establishing a national arboretum here. Its members are partly prompted by the fact that Victoria has the greatest plant range in the country—ranging from the sub-arctic to the semi-tropic.

City Council Topics

Aldermen Shelve Bus-Cut Action

City council yesterday deferred action on the inter-municipal committee recommendation that it approve the reduced Sunday and evening bus service proposed by the B.C. Electric.

It did so on the advice of city solicitor T. P. O'Grady, who said that the city had opposed an increase in bus fares, that this matter was related, and that the fare increase was not yet final but depended on an Appeal Court decision to be reached after a hearing Monday.

The company informed the city yesterday that it now proposes to institute the reduced service July 5.

Wage settlement with the city's outside staff was approved, with Ald. M. H. Mooney still objecting to the 9.63 per cent increase as being too much "at this time when there is so much unemployment."

Council gave its support to the proposal of the B.C. Association of Assessors that an attempt should be made to have three B.C. statutes affecting assessments brought into line.

The parrot, which was bequeathed the right of residence in a house on Courtney as long as he lives, is going to see the surrounding scenery change.

Council decided to allow the surrounding property to be used as a parking lot, under permit.

The city solicitor was instructed to prepare a bylaw amendment to provide authority for the city to remove stifle work from graves in Ross Bay Cemetery not being maintained, in its opinion, in accordance with the cemetery bylaw.

Referring to the recent ditch cave-in fatality in Saanich, Ald. Hugh Ramsay successfully called for a study by the city engineer of ways in which the city might require excavations to be adequately shored.

BOB CROSBY

'Degrading Experience'

Crosby Knocks Rock

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Bandleader Bob Crosby, brother of crooner Bing Crosby, took a "knock at the rock" yesterday while here for a show.

Crosby said that in a "misguided moment" he had signed up for a rock 'n' roll tour and "found it a degrading experience."

"That's the kind of music we used to play when the lights went out," he said. "It's the lowest form. You don't have to be a musician to play it or a singer to sing it."

Crosby said he went on tour with a rock 'n' roll show featuring Conway Twitty, Frankie Avalon and Jimmy Clanton and "it was three of the most miserable weeks of my life." He also said a few unkind words about television.

"I don't want any more television," Crosby said. "If I had my brother's money I'd buy it and scrap it."

Crosby said he had 6½ years of five shows a week on radio, 4½ years of five-a-week on TV.

"Now I work a few weeks, play some golf, work around my place, drive the children to school, and I like it."

Duncan Fair

Further Building Planned

DUNCAN—There is still enough money for more buildings to be built on the new exhibition grounds, Cowichan Exhibition treasurer Tom Groves said recently.

He said there is enough for a large barn and possibly three smaller ones.

The exhibition board is building a $20,000 administration building on its property west of Pioneer Park.

In other business Harold Whitfield was appointed chairman of a committee to check into the admission cost and gate prizes for the Cowichan Class "B" Exhibition this September.

Paving Job Starts Soon In Duncan

DUNCAN—Paving of nearly 19 miles of roads in the municipality, the biggest part of council's $500,000 road building program, will start early in June.

Work will be done on Herd Road from Bell-McKinnon to Maple Bay; all of Bell-McKinnon; Lake Road from Herd to Trunk; Genoa Bay Road from Maple Bay to Birdseye Cove; and some roads in Crofton and Chemainus.

General Construction Co. Ltd. of Vancouver will do the work costing $199,500 in about 30 weeks.

ARTHUR MOORHOUSE with obsolete rooster

His Life Function Filled by Science

DUNCAN—The days of the barnyard rooster are numbered. He's not wanted in this "modern" world and is even considered a "nuisance."

"They make the hens nervous and besides, fertile eggs don't keep very well," explains Arthur Moorhouse, Bench Road, one of this area's largest egg producers.

On his successful seven-acre property with two long buildings of pens Mr. Moorhouse keeps 4,000 chickens with about 2,500 laying hens.

"I won't have one on the place. Breeding is a tremendous field. I don't have the time for it," he said.

Chicken farmers these days buy day-old chicks. Mr. Moorhouse gets his leghorns from the United States.

"Hatcheries can produce them more healthy and cheaper than I can. That's why I'm sure in a few years only people with hens laying eggs for their own use will have roosters. Eventually I think there will be about six large hatcheries where chicken or egg farmers will get their chicks," Mr. Moorhouse said.

He moved here after 15 years in the navy and about 15 years working for an insurance firm at Montreal "where you spend half your life looking for a parking spot and the other half thawing out frozen water pipes."

The Moorhouse hens are housed in "typical New Jersey long henhouses" and fed automatically with a 230-foot-long trough.

When a lever is tripped at the end, the whole trough jogs forward and back three-quarters of an inch until it cuts out when a pile of mash trips a lever that breaks the electrical circuit.

Bulk Chemical Depot Planned for Nanaimo

NANAIMO—Douglas G. Stinson representing Stauffer Chemical Company of Canada Limited, announced yesterday that a bulk storage depot will be established in Nanaimo.

The project, the first of its kind in western Canada, will be used for the distribution of salt cake to the four large pulp mills on Vancouver Island, at Crofton, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Elk Falls.

Mr. Stinson said the salt cake will be brought in from California by ship and unloaded at a rate of 100 tons an hour.

Vice-president of Johnston Terminals, Douglas M. Brown, said the depot will be run by his firm.

Open House Sunday At St. Ann's School

DUNCAN—St. Ann's Catholic School, Tzouhalem Road, will hold an open house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Tea will be served at 3.15 p.m.

SPEEDY DOLPHINS
A dolphin can swim faster than vessels travelling at 30 knots.

The depot to be built at the government assembly wharf will be in operation by the end of the year. Tenders have been called and are returnable by June 22.

Garden Notes

Geranium Still Tops

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Our Victorian ancestors were rather fond of furnishing their ornamental flower beds with serried rows of scarlet geraniums, often neatly edged with dark blue lobelia. It has become the fashion to poke fun at the prim formality of the 80's, but I still think the old-fashioned geranium is tops as a bedding-out plant.

Not against a red brick house, of course, but with stucco or white clapboard for a background, geraniums provide a wonderful and long-lasting splash of color. If you handle the plants correctly, you can have an unbroken succession of bloom from June right through to the end of the summer season.

They are a bit on the expensive side, it is true, as a well-grown geranium plant will set you back about 35c, and as you space them only 18 inches apart each way, you'd need a fair number to furnish the average flower bed.

If you have the Green Thumb, though, it is quite possible to carry your plants over the winter and use them in the same bed again the following year, and of course, geraniums are easy to multiply by means of slips.

I never use barnyard manure in the preparation of the beds for geraniums. These plants go all fat and lazy on rich fare, and manure makes the growth as lush and sappy as a rhubarb leaf, with all foliage and few blooms. Besides, with manure so difficult and expensive to come by these days, I can't see the point in wasting the precious stuff on plants which don't appreciate it.

If the soil is extreme either way—very sandy or very heavy and full of clay—I dig in peat moss, which hasn't any food value in itself and doesn't promote sappy growth, but which modifies the extreme texture of such soils, lightening heavy clay and making sandy or gravelly soil more retentive of moisture. The only plant food I use for outdoor geraniums is bone meal and wood ashes, two cups wood ashes and one of bone meal to each square yard of ground.

I break down the lumps of soil moderately, but not too much. The geranium is naturally a forager, and does better if you don't make things too easy for it. Following the digging, I tread the bed much more firmly than for other flowers—as firmly as for Brussels sprouts.

This, I think, is the principal secret of success with geraniums—firm soil. The man who taught me this trick—the late W. H. Reader, parks superintendent of Calgary—always advised me to make the geranium beds as hard as the highway, and I have never had any reason to modify his advice.

This hard-packed soil always makes for a short-jointed plant, with a good head of bloom from every joint.

I plant my geraniums on the slant, with the main stem sloping upward at an angle of about 30 degrees, pinching the tip off each plant. This beheading of the plant induces side shoots to emerge from every joint, and these, growing upward from the sloping main stem, bear the clusters of flowers. You can imagine how much more bloom you get to the square foot this way than if the plants were set in the ground bolt upright.

Give the plants a good drink of water as you set them in the ground, but thereafter, it pays to maintain the bed just a little on the dry side. The bedding geranium is a native of South Africa, and appreciates dry, sunny conditions.

Conversation Piece

By Rudolph Flesch

Faithful Unscathed by Fire

Do you believe in the supernatural?

This is an old-fashioned question, and you don't see much discussion of it in the magazines nowadays. I was therefore quite startled when I found an innocent-looking article in the Atlantic called "Fire Walking in Ceylon."

Sounds like a run-of-the-mill travel piece with descriptions of some interesting native customs. It isn't, though. Anyone reading it unawares is in for quite a nasty shock.

The author of the piece, Dr. Leonard Feinberg, is a young English teacher at Iowa State College. Last year he got a Fulbright grant to teach for a year at Ceylon. While he was there, he went to see the annual fire-walking festival.

Fire walking, which seems to be a common diversion all over Asia and the South Seas, consists simply of this: A few months before fire-walking time comes around—in Ceylon, they always do it in August—the walkers prepare themselves by prayer, fasting and other devotions. (It's something like going on a pilgrimage to Lourdes—people go when they're desperately ill or grateful for delivery from great danger.)

Then, on the night of the fire walk, the devotees, in the presence of thousands of spectators, walk barefoot across a 20-by-6-foot pit filled with burning logs.

Dr. Feinberg, who watched the fire walking ceremony at Kataragawa, Ceylon, in August, 1958, counted 80 fire-walkers that night, including 10 women. He reports that one person died and 11 others were burned so badly they had to go to the hospital. This leaves 68 who walked across burning logs unharmed.

The article also reports on some scientific tests of fire walking that were made in England in 1935 and 1936. At that time, two Indians, Kuda Bux and Ahmed Hussain, walked through fire and submitted to all the controls a group of prominent scientists could think of.

The results were perfectly clear, Bux and Hussain had walked through fire, nothing had happened to them, and the eminent scientists were left to think up all sorts of theories to explain the inexplicable.

Dr. Feinberg carefully lists all those theories. They explain nothing whatever.

Well, what do you think? Many people, I suppose, will say that there must be a rational answer somewhere. They'll refuse to accept the simple answer Dr. Feinberg got from the Ceylonese—you can walk through fire if you have faith.

As for me, I'll stick to one of my favorite quotations from Montaigne: "To dismiss things as impossible is to pretend that you know what's possible and what isn't."

Over his partner's raise, South was faced with a dilemma. To contract for game at the minor suit seemed unwise in view of East's vulnerable opening bid. By bidding three spades, South suggested strength in that suit. He hoped that North might be able to bid three no-trump if he could stop the red suits. North, de-

'Friends' Desert Comedian Now That He's Down and Out

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comic Bud Abbott said yesterday a government audit disallowing $500,000 in deductions left him broke and he was selling his home to help pay back taxes.

"The government took it all but peanuts," said Abbott, surviving member of the Abbott and Costello comedy team.

He said he was putting his house up for sale. "I'm trying to get $75,000 for my home—and if I sell it, they tax that too. It's the same as if I try to work—there's no use to it."

SO-CALLED PAIS

He added: "And all my so-called pals suddenly don't know me any more now that the booze has stopped flowing."

Abbott, 63, now white-haired and heavier than when he starred as one of the best straight men in comedy, said he wouldn't have believed "people are like that."

"Sometimes I laugh at myself when I think of the $100 bills I handed out to guys who needed a touch."

Costello also lost heavily in the audit that covered a seven-year period, said Abbott. "But at least Lou owned 52 TV shorts outright. I merely got a salary from him."

FORCED TO SELL

The government forced both members of the team to sell the residual rights to their movies to a studio for $100,000 apiece, and then turned over the money for taxes. He said he also had to sell property at Ojai, Calif., as well as some of his land here.

Abbott said he and his family—his wife, Betty, and adopted children Bud Jr., 20, and Vickie, 18—are looking for a "small apartment or home somewhere, after we see what we get out of this."

MARGARET PETERSEN... Paintings of staggering power.

At the Art Gallery

How Many Know?

Fine U.S. Painter Lives Unnoticed in Victoria

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

One wonders how many people here in Victoria realize the stature of this American painter Margaret Petersen who has been living quietly in our midst for the past seven years.

For more than 20 years as lecturer in design at the University of California her work has had an extensive influence on Californian artists. Her study of the Indians of the desert, the Guatemala peninsula and the more remote parts of Mexico to say nothing of our own native Indians of Vancouver Island, has resulted in paintings of staggering power and interpretive insight.

OO BIG FOR SPACE

Four years ago she exhibited at the Art Gallery here, but at that time I found the force of her work too great to be fully appreciated in a gallery of medium size. But now, in the large galleries of the new centennial wing the vast conception of the paintings can be realized to the fullest.

It has been wrongfully stated that Margaret Petersen's paintings are based on Indian design. Though superficially some of the motifs she uses may appear to have some resemblance to the Indians, in reality they are entirely personal to the artist.

ORGASTIC WORSHIP

Being possessed of a very powerful but responsive personality, she has been able to distill into rhythm and color the orgiastic worship of the forces of nature as expressed by the native tribes in their ritualistic dances.

The two panels, "Beyond the Sun," hang from ceiling to floor of the main gallery and have a carrying power of more than 100 feet in their blazing color and masterly design.

There are also the gentler paintings like "Blue Head of Ochre," which shows a tenderness and fluid rhythm in contrast to the more formal majesty of the larger conceptions.

Words do not do justice to the overwhelming impact of this work which forms one of the outstanding exhibitions of the year. It has to be seen for oneself.

'Be Neutral'

Nikita Warns Greece

VIENNA (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev blazed a "goodwill" trail across Communist Albania yesterday in which he took time out to "advise" neighboring Greece to strip itself of its military power.

In Koritsa, only 10 miles from the Greek border, Khrushchev was said to have told a vast audience that he wanted to see Greece become "a neutral country, if possible detached from NATO, without missile bases and nuclear weapons bases, so that Greece will not become a menace and a danger to us."

"But if the devil causes the Greek government to lose its reason," Khrushchev said, "then so much the worse for the Greek government."

"So we advise the Greek government . . . to dismantle the missile nuclear weapons bases in Greece."

Khrushchev also warned Italy again against making missile sites available to the United States, and West Germany against trying to influence the course of the Geneva foreign ministers conference.

Solid West Adamant On Berlin

GENEVA (UPI) — The Western Big Three foreign ministers will go into their secret sessions with the Soviets determined to reject all cold war deals unless the Russians withdraw their Berlin threat.

Authoritative sources said the Western foreign ministers would go into the secret bargaining sessions this afternoon with no "fallback" position—no secondary plan that would give Russia one-sided concessions.

"They are determined to sit in Geneva indefinitely, if necessary, rather than weaken on the Berlin issue," the sources said.

Another wrangle was shaping up over German disarmament.

Justify Summit

Speed Up Geneva, Begs Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower yesterday made a personal appeal to Russia's Andrei Gromyko and other Big Four foreign ministers for enough progress at the snail's pace Geneva conference to justify a summit meeting.

The president conferred at the White House for about 30 minutes with the foreign ministers. A smiling Gromyko, appointed spokesman for the diplomats, said afterward that "we had a pleasant and useful conversation with the president."

The Russian, who appeared unusually affable, was about ready to say something more when French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville cut him off with a curt: "And that is all." All the ministers seemed in a jovial mood.

The White House said in a special statement that Eisenhower voiced hope the ministers, who resume their Geneva talks today, "would be able to achieve that measure of progress which would make a subsequent meeting of the heads of government desirable and useful."

'Resource' Road Near in Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Tribune says Manitoba and Ottawa have all but signed a multi-million-dollar "roads-to-resources" agreement to push a new 450-mile road from Gypsumville into northern Manitoba.

The newspaper says such a road would "break the back of high monopoly rail rates affecting development in the north."

People Wouldn't Stand It

Police Couldn't Enforce It

Stop Smoking by Law?—Not on Your Life!

A British doctor who told a Canadian audience governments must curb smoking has overlooked three things according to Victorians—the people don't want it—the police couldn't enforce it—the government can't afford it.

Dr. Ronald W. Raven, a

U.K. cancer specialist, told the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Cancer Society yesterday that "governments must see to it that smoking is prohibited in all public places."

"Youngsters must be made aware of the dangers of smoking!" he said.

But Victoria gave the good physician short shrift.

"I hope we're still living in a land of freedom," said Victoria Chief Constable John Blackstock. "However, if such a ban were established by law, enforcement would be a major headache. We'd have bootlegging all over again, of tobacco, this time."

Fred E. Richardson, 1757 Richardson, himself a smoker, thinks the ban on smoking in public would be a good thing. "Most of us really enjoy only about three of the cigarettes we smoke in a day. The rest are just habit, and most lack the will-power to break the habit. We don't need to smoke, and it's bound to cause damage. We're just too lazy to stop."

Mrs. Janette Senior, 930 Richmond, is a non-smoker who frankly thinks the habit is "disgusting."

"I certainly don't approve of it," she said. "but neither can I see people being dictated to—told what they can or can't do. If they enjoy smoking, all right; if it's just a habit, it's no good."

R. S. S. Macdonald, 3701 Epsom, is a smoker who doesn't think the proposed ban would help.

"What I think would cut down on the use of tobacco," he said, "is the imposition by the government of a tax so high that purchase of tobacco would be economically unfeasible."

Another non-smoker who is opposed to imposition upon individual rights is Mrs. Ruth Lohr, 2679 Chambers. "If people enjoy smoking, then they should be free to do so," Albert Fontney, 820 Shelbourne, a former perfume exporter who moved to Victoria from Paris, said. "This would restrict freedom. In France we have freedom."

Pearkes Confident But U.S. Cuts Back

Canadian Smokers Get Money's Worth

TORONTO (UPI)—Canadian smokers leave a shorter butt than American smokers.

A survey for the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Limited and the American Cancer Society showed that the average Canadian butt is slightly under one inch, while the American cigarette butt is one and a quarter inches.

Canadians pay 20 cents tax on 20 cigarettes, compared with eight cents in U.S.

Can Canada Keep Saucer a Secret?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of a Congressional committee have questioned whether security measures in Canada are good enough to keep America's first flying saucer as secret as it ought to be.

Popoff Guilty Of Murder

NELSON (CP)—Larry Popoff, 23, Thursday night was found guilty of murder in the death of Clarence Douglas Garrett and sentenced to be hanged Aug. 18.

Censored testimony released by the House space committee showed that some Congressmen were concerned about the matter.

A Toronto firm, Avro Aircraft Ltd., is developing the saucer-like craft for the U.S. Army and Air Force.

American military officials assured the committee that Canada's security control was closely interlaced with that of the U.S. but said it still would be hard to keep the project wholly secret.

Witnesses said initial test flights would be conducted in Canada, possibly this summer.

The Pentagon "will have to say something" publicly after the flights begin, said Brig. Gen. F. H. Britton.

Bonner Advises Leniency

Police should not enforce too strictly a law prohibiting possession of liquor in restaurants, Attorney-General Bonner said Thursday.

"The law is not intended to harass people," he said.

ONE OBLIGATION
"The only obligation on an individual is that he refrain from tramping about town with bottles of beer or liquor hanging out of his pockets."

Mr. Bonner was commenting on a criticism of the law by Judge R. A. Sargent during a recent Crown appeal against the acquittal of a man accused of having liquor in a cafe.

'Behind-Scenes' Remark Triggers Uproar in Council

Ike Twits 'Four'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower suggested jokingly yesterday that the Big Four foreign ministers, who flew back to Geneva together, shouldn't land until they reached an agreement.

The president coupled his jest with an offer to send a tanker plane to refuel their airplane so they could remain in the air.

PASSED ON
The president's remark was relayed to newsmen by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

He and 19 other foreign dignitaries attended a White House luncheon given by the president.

The dignitaries came here for the funeral of former secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the president, in a more serious vein, thanked the foreign visitors for making the trip. At his suggestion, the luncheon guests arose and toasted the late secretary.

U.S. Eyes McKee Activities

SEATTLE (AP)—An inquiry is being made into the activities of investment broker James Harris McKee, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission officer here said Thursday.

An attorney for the commission, John Fagan, said McKee presently is in Bellingham, Wash. McKee had been under scrutiny by securities authorities in British Columbia and Ontario for his part in raising some $850,000 for a Fraser River placer mining operation which never paid off.

The Victoria Colonist said Wednesday that McKee was currently trying to raise more funds, from the same persons in Ontario and British Columbia who contributed to the Fraser River scheme for a new venture in California.

Fagan would not comment on the report but said that "so far as we know he is not attempting to raise money from investors in the United States."

Leader Battle Coming

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A showdown meeting that may decide the leadership of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors "has been planned for Sunday."

The sect's self-proclaimed new spiritual leader, 58-year-old John Lebedoff will return to the Doukhobor community of Krestova on that day with the intention of taking over the sect from present spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, now living in Uruguay.

Lebedoff has threatened to name terrorists responsible for Kootenay violence.

A large contingent of RCMP will attend the meeting to prevent violence between the pro-Lebedoff group and those supporting Sorokin.

Monkeys Launch Man

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two monkeys turned the tables on Cape Canaveral scientists Thursday. They launched a man, Gardner Alexander Raik, leapt into the air with a yell of surprise when he looked up from a flower bed into the grinning faces of two furry pranksters, fugitives from the home of a neighbor.

They were recaptured by a posse of neighbors after a hectic chase, and gardener Raik came down to earth.

"Absolutely right," said the acting mayor.

Ald. McEwen said he would withdraw his remark, but stand by his proposal that the property be advertised again.

Ald. McEwen Stirs Storm

By R. O. MARRION

Ald. Elmer McEwen threw city council into an uproar yesterday with a reference to "behind the scenes" property dealings.

He withdrew the phrase later, however, after other aldermen had taken it as meaning underhanded, and explained that he didn't for a minute intend to suggest that there had been anything crooked.

The remark came during consideration of a finance committee recommendation that council accept a $22,500 bid from B.C. Land & Investment Agency on behalf of a client for the former Camosun tennis courts on Kingston, as the site for a large apartment building.

10 PER CENT HIGHER

This figure, City Manager C. C. Wyatt told council, was about 10 per cent higher than a provisional price mentioned in negotiations between the mayor and King Realty, on behalf of clients who—according to letters read to council—planned a 100-suite, $1,000,000 apartment building. These interests made no bid when the property was advertised, but asked yesterday that the city consider the advantages of having their proposed building on the site.

Council worried about the proper course of action, but finally agreed to table the question until its next meeting and obtain a report on details of the buildings proposed.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell and Ald. Austin Curtis held that the highest bid should be accepted.

Ald. McEwen questioned whether the property had been properly listed or advertised, and then came out with his remark: "There's certain property for sale... certain behind-the-scenes moving on property in the city for months and I don't appreciate it..."

TAKE EXCEPTION
"I take exception to that! What does he mean? That's quite a serious charge!" interrupted Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Ald. McEwen said council had had "all kinds of it this afternoon" and asked Acting Mayor Dowell if he had known earlier of the "arrangements" with King Realty.

"This innuendo is a terrible thing to do," said Ald. D. J. Proudfoot. "I don't think anyone on council would do anything underhanded. When there was going to be money in it for the city wouldn't you discuss it? I would."

"Regardless of any negotiations that might go on, is it not true there isn't a single piece of property sold without coming before this public body with the press present and so forth?" demanded Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

Ald. McEwen said he would withdraw his remark, but stand by his proposal that the property be advertised again.

The boy "caused more trouble than 12 older boys put together," policeman Reg Jones testified. "I can only describe him as the holy terror of Portcawl."

The holy terror was accused of: stealing from cars, taking bicycles and stealing from a store, taking his mother's pay envelope and spending it on cigarettes, setting fire to a phone booth, then calling up the operator to report it with "indecent language," playing lookey, stripping other boys of their clothes and money, and damaging crops by throwing stones.

City's Public Market Wins Temporary Reprieve

Victoria's public market will stay in operation for some time yet.

City council yesterday agreed to let the stallholders continue to operate on a week-to-week basis until demolition of the building is about to begin. And the stallholders were given sparks of hope that demolition might still be far off.

Council asked for a committee report on an offer from a real estate firm on behalf of a client to rent the old fire-hall in the building for five years. The client was ready to take the whole building if necessary, the company said.

Ald. Austin Curtis doused that spark somewhat. The city would have to spend a lot of money making the building conform to its own bylaws before it could rent it, he said, and if it didn't, "the fire marshal would be down on us like a ton of bricks."

But Ald. M. H. Mooney, who put up a vigorous fight against demolition, offered the stallholders other hope: the city hadn't the money this year to demolish the building, black-top a parking lot and install meters, he contended.

"Some of the tenants have been there 40 years. It's not fair just to have given them notice," he maintained.

The building, he said, could be used for indoor parking, for convention gatherings, for a bus depot, and he could go on and on.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, on the other hand, said he understood the building had been "recommended as unsafe and a fire hazard."

Making a fire hazard into any of the things Ald. Mooney had suggested, he said, would just make it that much worse.

He wouldn't think it would be a convention hall for Barkerville, let alone Victoria, he said.

"I would say this city hall is just as bad a fire hazard and we continue operating in it," argued Ald. Mooney.

'Litters' Being Bothered

Let the Ducks Alone!

Plight of the baby ducks in the model yacht pool on Dallas disturbed city council yesterday.

"We have duck trouble at the yacht pool. Three female ducks have, ah, littered," reported Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

"Poached?" suggested Ald. M. H. Mooney. "Had calves?" "Youngsters apparently are throwing rocks and sticks at the baby ducks," Ald. Edgelow continued, "and it's very disturbing to residents. The little ducks can't get out."

"We have had trouble there every year," Ald. Mooney said. "A walk has been put up out of the pool, but they insist on living there. Once we had city employees remove them, but it cost a great deal of money by the time they were captured and moved."

Council agreed with Ald.

Edgelow's suggestion that the SPCA be asked to move them to Beacon Hill Park.

But later, city officials said mother ducks and babies moved from the pool to the park on previous occasions had just walked back to the

Between September, April

Students Will Spend $700,000 in Victoria

'Tidal Wave' Hits in Fall

Victoria College students will spend $700,000, maybe more, in Victoria between September of this year and April, 1960, Dr. W. H. Gaddes told members of the Rotary Club yesterday.

He was one of two Victoria College professors to speak to Rotarians about the future of Victoria College. The other was Dr. Beattie McLean, who said, "We must be determined not to grow into a university where the individual is forgotten... we must watch carefully that while we grow we do not sacrifice this tradition that has grown with this little college."

SAVE $3,000

Dr. Gaddes said that a four-year university in Victoria can save a Victoria family as much as $3,000 on each youngster's university education.

"Not only is a four-year university needed in Victoria now, but it will be a direct monetary saving," he said and pointed out that a student living in Victoria could go to the college for about $900 a year, but it would cost about $1,500 for that student to go to UBC.

Dr. Gaddes said more than 1,000 students are expected to enroll at Victoria College in September, 1,500 before 1965 and more than 2,000 by 1970.

BUMPER YEAR

This September is "the bumper year when the tidal wave of war babies will hit the colleges and universities," he said.

Dr. Gaddes said Victoria College is now constitutionally permitted to offer the BA, B.Sc., B.Ed., degrees. In September it will offer a full third year in several arts and education courses "and it is very desirable that we have the chance to continue these students on into the fourth year," he said.

Dr. McLean made a plea for a chair of philosophy at Victoria College. "It appears to me to be one of the keystones of any liberal arts course," he said.

NURSING DEGREE
Dr. McLean said that "although we are at present a liberal arts and science university, we may have to meet the need for a nursing degree soon."

He also said Victoria College would be ideal for a school of marine biology and added, "I have always felt Victoria lends itself to facilities of fine arts and journalism."

FIRST CONCERN

But Dr. McLean warned that a university couldn't be established overnight. First concern, he said, is to get the right calibre of professors...

"First-class, not stop-gap." Most pressing and desperate need at Victoria College is a library building and a science building, Dr. McLean said.

Widow's House Gets Facelift by Jaycees

An old house belonging to a recently widowed Victoria woman will be given a new face tomorrow by a Jaycee-sponsored group intent on setting an example to the rest of the city.

The house, at 2120 Oregon Street, received the first step in the annual Jaycee "paint-up, clean-up" yesterday afternoon when a fire truck from the Victoria fire department hosed it down, preparatory to painting.

At 8:30 a.m. tomorrow members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, their wives and members of Painters' Union 1162 will descend on the house en masse.

By 11:30 a.m., retiring Jaycee president Stewart Hagar hopes the project will be completed.

And in answer to a question that is asked every year, he said city council will not increase taxes on a house that is so improved.

Children's Milk Before Chlordane

'Only Rich Can Afford To Poison Their Earrings'

Chlordane is fine as an earwig killer for the pch gardener, says earwig fighter Douglas T. Hawkes, 2713 Cavendish.

"But a guy that can't put an extra quart of milk in his youngsters' tummies won't buy chlordane," he pointed out.

That was Mr. Hawkes' answer to federal government entomologist Harry Anderson, who advises poison baits for earwig control, but says it's a battle gardeners will never win.

What we need is more tin cans, Mr. Hawkes said last night.

"It is so simple to fill several tin cans with paper and put them on top of low posts," he said. "We all know how to kill earwigs, so let's get on with the job, but let's all battle together."

He envisages "something like a porchlight campaign or an earwig week when everybody puts out tin-can earwig traps."

"Surely that would keep the earwig population down. You kill poiso by concentrated effort. I figure these little fellows are around and it is no good trying to beat them off by oneself... let's get together," he urged.

But Yachts Get Limelight

Gull Steals Show

By IAN STREET

A seagull stole the show for a few minutes last night from 39 trim yachts gathered in the Inner Harbor for the annual Swiftsure ocean racing classic which starts from Brothie Lodge at 9:30 a.m.

Thousands of spectators turned out to enjoy racing eve- pomp and pageantry which this year included a sunset ceremony carried out by the Royal Canadian Navy on the lawns in front of the legislative buildings.

ROOFTOP BATTLE

Many in the crowd turned to crane their necks as the lone seagull fought off determined attempts of a couple of smaller birds to force it from the perch on the highest pinnacle of the Empress Hotel. For a few minutes it was the show.

Police were called in to regulate the press of spectators who crowded onto the floats for a closer look at the gleaming craft dressed overall in flags and bunting, and worth up to a couple of hundred thousand dollars each.

IN HOLIDAY MOOD

But it was a good-humored crowd in a holiday mood. When a visiting yachtman spotted a friend in the crowd, he called to the policeman on the gangway: "Say officer, this is a good friend of mine. Sailed in the Honolulu race in 1908."

A crew-cut youth pushed through the crowd and passed the grinning officer who said, "mind how you go, dad," and the crowd hoisted with laughter.

In ceremonies starting at 7 p.m. a master-of-ceremonies

Humphrey Golby introduced each yacht entered in the race to the accompaniment of raucous horns and whistles from other boats.

There were brief speeches of welcome by acting mayor Arthur Dowell and RVCY commodore Walter Walsh, and a few words in reply from Pacific International Yachting Association commodore Dan Olsen, of the Bellingham Yacht Club.

After an hour or so the crowds on the floats began to thin out as hundreds took up positions in front of the legislative buildings for the moving sunset ceremony. Units of the navy's Pacific Command put on a display of precision drill.

Meanwhile late-arriving crewmen were tossing duffel bags of gear and suitcases aboard the yachts, while others prepared to spend the night ashore at the Empress where they had taken rooms to ensure a peaceful night.

Members of competing crews exchanged banter like "throw us a line, we'll need one" and "more power to you."

No doubt they recalled last year's Swiftsure, when light winds brought home the first boat in 30 hours, compared with the 1957 time of 26 hours.

Because, even in boats like this, with every electronic navigational device money can buy, they must depend on the winds and the tides in tomorrow's big race.

In the words of the man on the public address system: "Tomorrow at 9:30 this Swiftsure fleet of 39 boats with sails billowing, crews with eyes fixed on the far horizon, will face they know not what."

Models Stage Own Swiftsure

Swiftsure contestants won't be the only yachts racing this weekend. Friday evening members of the Victoria Model Boat Club will gather at the model boat basin on Dallas Road for their second "meet" of the season.

Members hope to increase their numbers in a city as sailing-conscious as Victoria, built a boat to join; kit-assembled models or purchased craft of any type are acceptable. More information may be obtained from Mr. MacDonald at Room 109, 1216 Broad.

India Pale Ale is here!

This is the Ale that people have been asking Labatt's for ever since we commenced brewing in British Columbia.

This is the Ale that so many of our friends from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes (and service men who visited these provinces) remember as the ale that really tastes like an ale.

This is the Ale whose unique strength and flavour have brought it world wide recognition as a truly distinctive product of Canada's brewing industry.

This is the Ale that has won more international awards for quality than any other Canadian malt beverage.

This is the Ale that is a part of the history of the Empire itself. In the 18th century the Imperial Army requested the master brewers of England to compete in brewing a special type of ale to be shipped to the Indian garrisons. The ale was to have sufficient strength, flavour and body to stand the long sea voyage to India in wooden casks without deterioration of quality. The brew selected became known throughout the world as INDIA PALE ALE — the direct ancestor of Labatt's famous IPA — full bodied — full strength — full flavoured — the Man's Ale in every sense of the word! Only Labatt's make it.

Duncan SPCA in High Gear

Dog Situation 'Disgraceful'

Temporary Kennel Planned

DUNCAN — The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals here swung into high gear yesterday to halt the "critical and disgraceful" dog situation here.

At a special meeting yesterday with provincial SPCA executive director they decided to accept an offer from North Cowichan council for land.

MOVEABLE KENNEL
The executive was appointed as a committee to build a temporary moveable kennel "right away" at the present SPCA shelter, that would later be moved to their own property in the municipality.

Tom Hughes, provincial executive, advised the group to get the land and to build a house and move the kennel to it for a combined "kennel-shelter."

SELF-SUPPORTING
"In an area of over 15,000 people a pound-shelter is usually self-supporting, and I'm sure this area can be too," said Mr. Hughes.

Mrs. J. S. Lang, Duncan president, told the meeting North Cowichan Reeve C. A. P. Murlison had said, "If we give them a good proposition they would turn over quite a lot of the dog licence fees to us."

$2,500 A YEAR
The group should be able to get $2,500 a year from the combined city and municipal licence fees.

Mrs. M. D. Delahunt, Inverarity Road, who operates a pound on her property free for the SPCA, said she doesn't have room for all the animals that are being brought to her now.

DON'T TAKE THEM
"Don't take them. If you don't have quarters you are injuring the reputation of the SPCA and the dogs themselves by cramming them in," said Mr. Hughes.

"Councils can hide behind us when they do nothing," he said. "Let's put it to them and let them know at present we have just a temporary operation."

DECLARED WAR
City council has already declared "war" on dogs and are enforcing the leash bylaw that means dog owners must have their pets on a leash or under their control when the dogs are off their property.

NANAIMO — Two graduation banquets will be held in Nanaimo Friday. Graduating from Nanaimo High School this year are 182 students who will be entertained at a banquet to be held in the high school cafeteria.

The other banquet will be for the 115 graduates from the Dominion Vocation Training School.

The second affair will take place at the Plaza Ballroom. Scrolls will be handed out to the graduates by Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

No Double Take

It's not a double exposure... it's just Mrs. Lois Burdick, clerk in the Island Drug store at Duncan, trying out some of the glasses being collected for the Lions Club glasses drive. Hundreds have been collected at several collection points in Duncan district and the glasses will be repaired and sent to India and other countries where glasses are now almost impossible to get. $80,000

Vote Slated

NANAIMO — Cedar ratepayers will shortly be asked to approve a referendum to authorize an $80,000 water system.

A pumping station and a water tower will be installed in the system, and water will be taken from a well near Nanaimo River.

Sufficient number of signatures are now available to enable them to send a formal petition to the water rights branch, in Victoria, to form a water improvement district.

Cowichan Lock Gate Dropping

DUNCAN — B.C. Forest Products employees have started a gradual lowering of the boat lock gates at Lake Cowichan.

"The purpose is to ensure that control of the Cowichan River is achieved in a gradual manner without any sudden variations in flow," said a company official.

Lowering of the gates will not affect the operation of the boat lock, which will be opened to boat travel in the usual manner.

Sports Show Manager Feted by Club

DUNCAN — G. P. MacMillan, manager of the Kiwanis boat and sportsman show here earlier this month, has been given a set of luggage by appreciative club members.

Presentation took place Wednesday at the general meeting when committee chairmen discussed any suggested changes that might be made in future shows.

Club president George Sinden said the show would be an annual affair.

"We couldn't have done it without him," he said.

Speeder 'Lucky' To Keep Licence

DUNCAN — An 80-mile-an-hour speeder narrowly missed having his driver's licence suspended in court here yesterday.

L. D. Grais of Nanaimo pleaded guilty to the offence that took place Wednesday near Ladysmith. He was fined $25.

"At that speed your licence should be suspended," said Magistrate A. C. Sutton. "If you come back it will be."

Mr. Robson pioneered the use of air-filled tires on logging trucks on Vancouver Island before he retired and started his widely-known farm on the Cowichan River delta.

His 200 head of purebred Hereford and Angus cattle were sold to Mr. Hill who will take over the ranch in June.

The land and buildings have been leased for seven years.

Mr. Robson's Pyrenees Mountains separating France from Spain reach as high as 11,000 feet.

Nanaimo Wading Pools Open This Weekend

NANAIMO — Recreation manager Harry Wippen says wading pools in three Nanaimo parks will be opened this weekend. BAN SMOKING BY LAW? NO!

A British doctor who told a Canadian audience governments must curb smoking has overlooked three things, according to Victorians—the people don't want it—the police couldn't enforce it—the government can't afford it.

Dr. Ronald W. Raven, a

U.K. cancer specialist, told the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Cancer Society yesterday that "governments must see to it that smoking is prohibited in all public places."

"Youngsters must be made aware of the dangers of smoking," he said.

But Victoria gave the good physician short shrift.

"I hope we're still living in a land of freedom," said Victoria Chief Constable John Blackstock. "However, if such a ban were established by law, enforcement would be a major headache. We'd have bootlegging all over again, of tobacco, this time."

Fred E. Richardson, 1757 Richardson, himself a smoker, thinks the ban on smoking in public would be a good thing.

"Most of us really enjoy only about three of the cigarettes we smoke in a day. The rest are just habit, and most lack the will-power to break the habit. We don't need to smoke, and it's bound to cause damage. We're just too lazy to stop."

Mrs. Janette Senior, 930 Richmond, is a non-smoker who frankly thinks the habit is "disgusting."

"I certainly don't approve of it," she said, "but neither can I see people being dictated to—told what they can or can't do. If they enjoy smoking, all right; if it's just a habit, it's no good."

R. S. S. MacDonald, 3701 Esplanade, is a smoker who doesn't think the proposed ban would help.

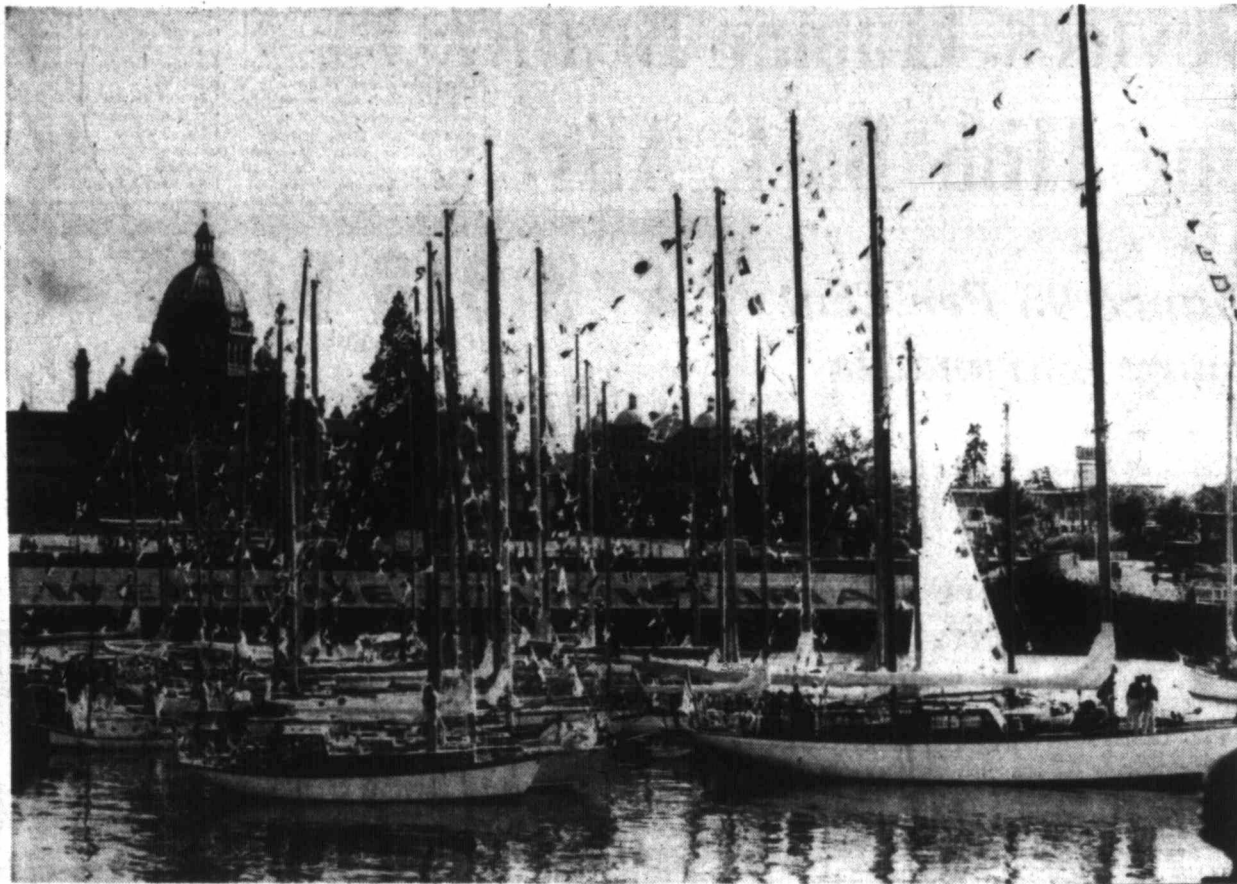

"What I think would cut down on the use of tobacco," he said, "is the imposition by the government of a tax so high that purchase of tobacco would be economically unfeasible."

Another non-smoker who is opposed to imposition upon individual rights is Mrs. Ruth

Loehr, 2679 Chambers. "If people enjoy smoking, then they should be free to do so."

Albert Fontney, 820 Shelbourne, a former perfume-exporter who moved to Victoria from Paris, said "This would restrict freedom. In France we have freedom."

Peaceful Flotilla Rests Before Today's Race

A field of 39 boats for today's Swiftsure ocean racing classic equals the record number of entries set in 1958. Boats will begin to leave Victoria's inner harbor three hours before the start from Brothie Ledge at 9.30 a.m. Race is 132.2 nautical miles. See pictures, stories on pages 12, 21, 23.—(Colonist photo.)

Pearkes Confident But U.S. Cuts Back

Canadian Smokers Get Money's Worth

TORONTO (UPI)—Canadian smokers leave a shorter butt than American smokers.

A survey for the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada Limited and the American Cancer Society showed that the average Canadian butt is slightly under one inch, while the American cigarette butt is one and a quarter inches.

Canadians pay 20 cents tax on 20 cigarettes, compared with eight cents in U.S.

Can Canada Keep Saucer a Secret?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of a Congressional committee have questioned whether security measures in Canada are good enough to keep America's first flying saucer as secret as it ought to be.

Popoff Guilty Of Murder

NELSON (CP)—Larry Popoff, 23, Thursday night was found guilty of murder in the death of Clarence Douglas Garrett and sentenced to be hanged Aug. 18.

Censored testimony released by the House space committee showed that some Congressmen were concerned about the matter.

A Toronto firm, Avro Aircraft Ltd., is developing the saucer-like craft for the U.S. Army and Air Force.

American military officials assured the committee that Canada's security control was closely interlocked with that of the U.S. but said it still would be hard to keep the project wholly secret.

Witnesses said initial test flights would be conducted in Canada, possibly this summer.

The Pentagon "will have to say something" publicly after the flights begin, said Brig. Gen. F. H. Britton.

Robbers Get Peso Fortune

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A fortune brought here from a Mexican fortune teller was stolen Thursday night by holdup men who fled after wounding a U.S. woman.

Cuban pesos valued at $3,000,000 were brought to Mexico for conversion at a profitable rate of exchange. Four U.S. citizens and three Mexicans were said to have been involved.

Liquor in Cafes

Bonner Advises Leniency

Police should not enforce too strictly a law prohibiting possession of liquor in restaurants, Attorney General Bonner said Thursday.

"The law is not intended to harass people," he said.

ONE OBLIGATION

"The only obligation on an individual is that he refrain from tramping about town with bottles of beer or liquor hanging out of his pockets."

"There is not much problem with this in cities, but in some rural areas there is a bit of nipping between the liquor store and home."

COMMENTS

Mr. Bonner was commenting on a criticism of the law by Judge R. A. Sargent during a recent Crown appeal against the acquittal of a man accused of having liquor in a cafe.

'Behind-Scenes' Remark Triggers Uproar in Council

Ike Twits 'Four'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower suggested jokingly yesterday that the Big Four foreign ministers, who flew back to Geneva together, shouldn't land until they reached an agreement.

The president coupled his jest with an offer to send a tanker plane to refuel their airplane so they could remain in the air.

PASSED ON

The president's remark was relayed to newsmen by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. He and 19 other foreign dignitaries attended a White House luncheon given by the president.

The dignitaries came here for the funeral of former secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the president, in a more serious vein, thanked the foreign visitors for making the trip. At his suggestion, the luncheon guests arose and toasted the late secretary.

U.S. Eyes McKee Activities

SEATTLE (AP)—An inquiry is being made into the activities of investment broker James Harris McKee, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission officer here said Thursday.

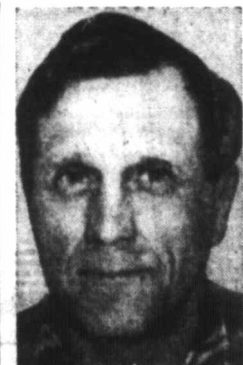

An attorney for the commission, John Fagan, said McKee presently is in Bellingham, Wash. McKee had been under scrutiny by securities authorities in British Columbia and Ontario for his part in raising some $850,000 for a Fraser River placer mining operation which never paid off.

The Victoria Colonist said Wednesday that McKee was currently trying to raise more funds, from the same persons in Ontario and British Columbia who contributed to the Fraser River scheme for a new venture in California.

Fagan would not comment on the report but said that "so far as we know he is not attempting to raise money from investors in the United States."

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A showdown meeting that may decide the leadership of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors has been planned for Sunday.

The sect's self-proclaimed new spiritual leader, 58-year-old John Lebedoff will return to the Doukhobor community of Krestova on that day with the intention of taking over the sect from present spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, now living in Uruguay.

Lebedoff has threatened to name terrorists responsible for Kootenay violence.

A large contingent of RCMP will attend the meeting to prevent violence between the pro-Lebedoff group and those supporting Sorokin.

Monkeys Launch Man

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two monkeys turned the tables on Cape Canaveral scientists Thursday. They launched a man, Gardner Alexander Raik, into the air with a yell of surprise when he looked up from a flower bed into the grinning faces of two furry pranksters, fugitives from the home of a neighbor.

They were recaptured by a posse of neighbors after a hectic chase, and Gardner Raik came down to earth.

Ald. McEwen Stirs Storm

By R. O. MARRION

Ald. Elmer McEwen threw city council into an uproar yesterday with a reference to "behind the scenes" property dealings.

He withdrew the phrase later, however, after other aldermen had taken it as meaning underhanded, and explained that he didn't for a minute intend to suggest that there had been anything crooked.

The remark came during consideration of a finance committee recommendation that council accept a $22,500 bid from B.C. Land & Investment Agency on behalf of a client for the former Camosun tennis courts on Kingston, as the site for a large apartment building.

10 PER CENT HIGHER

This figure, City Manager C. C. Wyatt told council, was about 10 per cent higher than a provisional price mentioned in negotiations between the mayor and King Realty on behalf of clients who—according to letters read to council—planned a 100-suite, $1,000,000 apartment building. These interests made no bid when the property was advertised, but asked yesterday that the city consider the advantages of having their proposed building on the site.

Council worried about the proper course of action, but finally agreed to table the question until its next meeting and obtain a report on details of the buildings proposed.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell and Ald. Austin Curtis held that the highest bid should be accepted.

Ald. McEwen questioned whether the property had been properly listed or advertised, and then came out with his remark: "There's certain property for sale . . . certain behind-the-scenes moving on property in the city for months and I don't appreciate it . . ."

TAKE EXCEPTION

"I take exception to that! What does he mean? That's quite a serious charge!" interrupted Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood.

Ald. McEwen said council had had "all kinds of it this afternoon" and asked Acting Mayor Dowell if he had known earlier of the "arrangements" with King Realty.

"This innuendo is a terrible thing to do," said Ald. D. J. Proudfoot. "I don't think anyone on council would do anything underhanded. When there was going to be money in it for the city wouldn't you discuss it? I would."

"Regardless of any negotiations that might go on, is it not true there isn't a single piece of property sold without coming before this public body with the press present and so forth?" demanded Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

"Absolutely right," said the acting mayor.

Ald. McEwen said he would withdraw his remark, but stand by his proposal that the property be advertised again.
